Hawks and Hounds

Tramping through the verdant forests,
climbing up the snowy mountain,
tripping through the flow'ry meadow,
drinking from the sparkling fountain.

Kings and Queens, and hawk and hound,
with measured tread on hallowed ground.
The richest game, the choicest prey,
the plenteous source, the perfect day!

Trudging through the ravaged forest,
staring at the blackened mountain,
tripping over broken pavings,
scooping rubbish from the fountain.

Down the years, creationwide,
the birds are gone; the seas have dried.
The earth is filled with tainted air.
The towns are full; the trees are bare!

Turn again with measured tread.
Breathe life into what once was dead.
Restore our forests fresh and fair
and breathe once more the hallowed air!

Hail!
