Vorwort

I. Zur Entstehung und Überlieferung des Werkes

Mozarts Requiem, sein letztes und unvollendet gebliebenes Werk, war ein Auftragsstück von Franz Graf Wallsegg, der es zum Gedächtnis seiner verstorbenen Gattin als eigene Komposition aufführen lassen wollte.¹ Um die Vereinbarung mit dem Grafen einhalten und das in Aussicht gestellte Honorar in Empfang nehmen zu können, veranlasste Mozarts Witwe Constanze insgeheim eine Ergänzung des Fragments. Das Werk ist der breiten Öffentlichkeit in der unmittelbar nach Mozarts Tode fertig gestellten Fassung seines Adlatus Franz Xaver Süßmayr bekannt. In seiner traditionellen, von Süßmayr vervollständigten Gestalt besteht es aus 14 Abschnitten (s. Seite III).

Dem Requiem liegen folgende Quellen zugrunde:

1. Mozarts Niederschrift der Sätze:

- [1] (Requiem aeternam) – quasi vollständig;
- [2] (Kyrie-Fuge) – ein durchlaufender Entwurf der Chorstimmen samt Orchesterbass;
- [3]–[10] – die Chor- bzw. Vokalstimmen samt Orchesterbass wie bei [2], mit gelegentlichen Motiven der Orchesterbegleitung, wobei [8] (Lacrimosa) nach 8 Takten abbricht.

2. Eine Vervollständigung der Orchesterstimmen zur Kyrie-Fuge, die wohl schon für die Trauerfeier am 10. Dezember 1791 – also fünf Tage nach Mozarts Tod – durch seine Schüler Franz Jakob Freystädtler (Bläser – Streicher) und Süßmayr (Trompeten – Pauken) in Mozarts Partitur ausgeführt und eingetragen wurde.

3. Eine partielle Ergänzung der SEQUENZ durch Joseph Eybler, ebenfalls in Mozarts Entwurfs-Partitur eingetragen: [3] (Dies irae) und [7] (Confutatis) – vollständig; [4]–[6] – nur Streicherstimmen; [8] – zwei Takte Sopranstimme als Weiterführung des Lacrimosa.

4. Die Ergänzung Süßmayrs:

- [2] in seiner und Freystädtlers Instrumentierung;
- [3]–[10] unter Miteinbeziehung von Eyblers Arbeit voll instrumentiert;
- [11]–[14] in Vertonungen, die nur in seiner Handschrift erhalten sind, wobei der letzte Satz Lux aeterna – Cum sanctis tuis lediglich eine Umtextierung eines Teiles aus dem Requiem aeternam und der Kyrie-Fuge bildet.²

5. Eine Fassung des OFFERTORIUMS von Abbé Maximilian Stadler, die wohl nach Süßmayrs Fassung entstanden ist.³

6. Ein Skizzenblatt, das u. a. eine kontrapunktische Skizze zum Rex tremendae sowie einen von Süßmayr nicht berücksichtigten Beginn einer Amen-Fuge als Abschluss des Lacrimosa (d. h. der SEQUENZ) enthält. Dass diese Fuge jene Stelle des Requiems betrifft, geht aus Folgendem hervor: Das Blatt enthält außer Skizzen zum Rex tremendae, zur Amen-Fuge und zu einem bislang nicht identifizierten Stück eine Skizze zur Oper Die Zauberflöte. Damit ist eine Datierung des Blattes auf Herbst 1791 gesichert. Da Mozart nachweislich zu dieser Zeit an keinem anderen Kirchenmusikwerk gearbeitet hat, wäre ein Zusammenhang mit dem Requiem ohnehin wahrscheinlich. Diese Vermutung wird durch die im Fugenanlauf verwendete Haupttonart des Requiems (d-Moll) und insbesondere durch die Wiederkehr seiner Thematik (vgl. S. Vf.) bestätigt. Die genaue Einordnung der Fuge innerhalb des Requiems ist eindeutig: das Wort „Amen“ kommt nur ein einziges Mal vor – am Schluss des Lacrimosa. Eine solche Amen-Fuge entspricht der Praxis zeitgenössischer Requiem-Vertonungen (Bonno, Michael Haydn, Jomelli, Gassmann) und hätte eine Gesamtstruktur verwirklicht, in der jeder Teil durch eine Fuge abgeschlossen wäre (INTROITUS – Kyrie-Fuge; SEQUENZ – Amen-Fuge; OFFERTORIUM – Quam olim Abrahae-Fuge; SANCTUS-Benedictus – *Hosanna*⁴-Fuge; AGNUS DEI-COMMUNIO – Cum sanctis tuis-Fuge).⁵

Da Eyblers Ergänzung der SEQUENZ ([3]–[8]) in Mozarts Manuskript eingetragen wurde, musste Süßmayr Mozarts Fragment von Beginn der SEQUENZ an als Bestandteil seiner Ergänzung abschreiben. Das vollständige Requiem, bestehend aus der Eigenschrift Mozarts von Requiem aeternam und Kyrie (samt Instrumentierung der Kyrie-Fuge durch Freystädtler und Süßmayr) und der Süßmayrs für den Rest, konnte dann mit einer gefälschten Unterschrift „di me W. A. Mozart mpr 1792“ von der Hand Süßmayrs auf der ersten Partiturseite dem Grafen abgegeben werden – allerdings erst nachdem Constanze (unter Missachtung der Auftragsbedingungen) das Werk hatte abschreiben lassen.⁶

VII–XXI); Christoph Wolff, Mozarts Requiem: Geschichte, Musik, Dokumente, Partitur des Fragments. derung von Mozarts „Requiem.“, in: Jahrbuch des Vereins für Geschichte der Stadt Wien, Band 47/48 (1991/1992), S. 33.

² Die Satzfolge des von Süßmayr ergänzten Requiems (Vertonungen von SANCTUS ff. aber nicht vom GRADUALE Requiem aeternam, vom TRACTUS Absolve, Domine oder vom RESPONSORIUM Libera me samt ANTIPHON In paradisum) entspricht der in Salzburg und Wien herrschenden Praxis; vgl. Nowak, a. a. O., Teilband 1, S. VIII; Wolff, a. a. O., S. 68–74. Es ist plausibel, dass Süßmayr die Anweisung dazu direkt von Mozart erhielt.

³ Die chronologische Beziehung zwischen Stadlers und Süßmayrs Fassungen ist noch umstritten. Stadler übersiedelte erst 1796 nach Wien, hatte jedoch mit Mozart in seinen Wiener Jahren Verbindung und oft Gelegenheit, trotz seiner Ernennung im Januar 1791 zum ehrenamtlichen Konsistorialrat in Linz, nach Wien zu reisen. Er hätte also durchaus dem Kreis der Requiem-Ergänzer angehören können. Vgl. Nowak, a. a. O., Teilband 2, S. IX und Wolff, a. a. O., S. 29, 30–31. Da Stadlers Fassung aber nachweislich nicht auf Mozarts Fragment zurückgeht, wäre eine spätere Entstehungszeit (1800 oder sogar danach) wohl wahrscheinlicher. Vgl. Moseley, a. a. O., S. 213, 222–223, 236–237.

⁵ Vgl. auch S. IXff.; Nowak, a. a. O., Teilband 1, S. XI; Wolff, a. a. O., S. 35–37, 113–114.

⁶ Ebenfalls unter Missachtung jener Bedingungen ließ sie das Werk 1799 durch Breitkopf & Härtel veröffentlichen.

II. Fragen der Autorschaft

Die Beschreibung der Quellen beantwortet nicht die Frage, wie viele von den nicht aus Mozarts Hand überlieferten Teilen auf seinen Ideen beruhen. Constanze und Süßmayr haben beide behauptet, dass diese Sätze vollständig vom „Ergänzer“ stammten. Diese Behauptung ist jedoch häufig bestritten worden: Jahrelang haben Fachleute beteuert, dass Teile dieser Musik eine Qualität aufweisen würden, die Süßmayr unmöglich ohne Hilfe hätte erreichen können.⁷

Die Angriffe gegen Süßmayrs Ergänzung begannen 1825, als der sogenannte „Requiem-Streit“ entbrannte.⁸ In der Tat weist seine Arbeit grundsätzliche Fehler auf, die Mozarts Sprache fremd sind. Diese Fehler, die übrigens auch in Süßmayrs Ergänzung zum zweiten Satz von Mozarts Hornkonzert D-Dur KV 412 (ebenfalls im Todesjahr 1791 entstanden) auftreten, umfassen grammatikalische und satztechnische Gebiete: eklatante parallele Quinten in der Orchesterbegleitung des Sanctus (Takt 4, Violine I/Sopran), ungeschickte Stimmführung der kaum ausgearbeiteten Hosanna-Fuge,⁹ oder deren Wiederkehr nach dem Benedictus nicht in der Originaltonart D-Dur, sondern in B-Dur und damit im Widerspruch zur kirchenmusikalischen Praxis des 18. Jahrhunderts.¹⁰ Solche offensichtlichen Mängel, die Süßmayrs ganze Arbeit kennzeichnen, könnten leicht zu der Annahme führen, die Sätze Sanctus/Hosanna, Benedictus und Agnus Dei seien ausschließlich auf Süßmayr zurückzuführen. Dieser Hypothese stehen allerdings enthüllende Einzelheiten der überlieferten Ergänzung entgegen.

Süßmayrs eigenständige Werke bieten uns die Möglichkeit, die Art seines kompositorischen Aufbaus mit derjenigen der Requiem-Ergänzung zu vergleichen.¹¹ Bei diesem Vergleich stellt sich heraus, dass Süßmayr jeden Satz für sich zu komponieren pflegte, ohne sich um die thematische Einheitlichkeit eines mehrsätzigen Werkes zu kümmern. In diesem Punkt ähnelt er der Mehrzahl seiner Zeitgenossen, die auch innerhalb eines Satzes thematische Abwechslung häufig der straffen Einheitlichkeit vorgezogen haben.¹² Dagegen ist Mozarts Requiem-Fragment jedoch von engen motivischen und strukturellen Beziehungen geprägt.¹³

¹³ Die folgende Liste ist nur repräsentativ, nicht lückenlos.

A) Das Thema des INTROITUS (Fagott I, T. 1; Chorbass, T. 8) taucht in folgenden Sätzen wieder auf:

INTROITUS: Alt, in melodischer Umkehrung, als Kontrastsubjekt per diminutionem.

Re-qui-ema-e - ter - nam,
Do - na, do -

Kyrie-Fuge: indirektes (ausgeziertes) Zitat im Subjekt, T. 49ff.; Umkehrung innerhalb des Kontrastsubjekts per diminutionem.

Ky - ri - e e - le - i - son, e - le - -
Chri - ste e - le - -

Dies irae: Orchesterbass, T. 1–5; Sopran, T. 4–6.

slo-vet sae-clum in fa-vil-la:

Tuba mirum: Posaune, T. 8, in der melodischen Umkehrung.

Skizze zur Amen-Fuge für den Schluss der SEQUENZ (das heißt, des Lacrimosa): Thema in der melodischen Umkehrung per augmentationem; Sopran, T. 6–7, zweimal per diminutionem.

A - - - - - men
a - men, a - - - - - men,

Domine Jesu: Chor- bzw. Orchesterbass, T. 8/9 und T. 10/11.

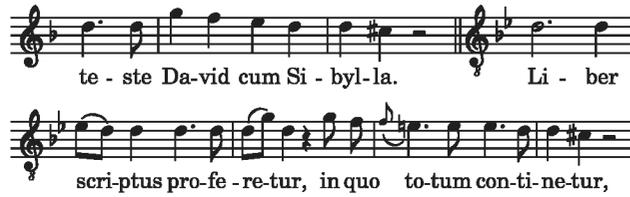

de poe-nis in-fer - ni, de poe-nis in-fer - ni

B) Der Orchesterbass des INTROITUS (T. 1–2) taucht im Lacrimosa (T. 1–2) wieder auf:

C) Der Schluss der ersten Phrase des Dies irae findet sich in folgenden Sätzen wieder:

Tuba mirum (T. 24ff.):

am Schluss des Rex tremendae:

Dieses Zitat könnte auch als Krebs des INTROITUS-Themas angesehen werden.

Domine Jesu:

zu Beginn des Hostias (erweitert):

D) Das Posaenthema des Tuba mirum wird nicht nur vom Solo-Bass vorgetragen, sondern auch vom Solo-Tenor in f-Moll:

Dieses Thema kehrt dann in den folgenden Sätzen wieder:

Confutatis:

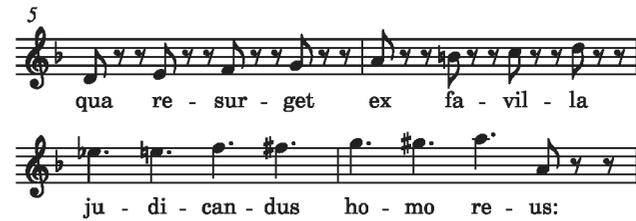

Lacrimosa, leicht verändert:

E) Die große absteigende Tonleiter zu Beginn des Rex tremendae kehrt im Confutatis (T. 3f.) wieder:

Die aufsteigende Tonleiter im Lacrimosa könnte als melodische Umkehrung dieser Passage verstanden werden:

F) Das Thema des Recordare wird für die Quam olim Abrahae-Fuge wieder verwendet:

G) Der Abschnitt „Ingemisco, tamquam reus“ aus dem Recordare taucht im Hostias wieder auf:

H) Außer der Entlehnung des Confutatis-Themas aus dem Tuba mirum stammt die Begleitfigur der Violinen für die Phrase „Voca me“ aus dem Recordare (vgl. Text!); der vokale Zug (vgl. T. 17ff.) ist ohnehin mit dem INTROITUS-Thema verwandt:

Da Süßmayrs eigene Kompositionen keine derartigen Beziehungen enthalten, würde man diese kaum in seiner Requiem-Ergänzung erwarten. Doch lehrt der Notentext uns eines Besseren:

– Das Sanctus-Thema entsteht aus dem Dies irae:

– Das zweiteilige Hosanna-Fugenthema entsteht aus dem Recordare/Quam olim Abrahae-Thema und der Umkehrung des INTROITUS-Themas (= diminutio des Amen-Fugenthemas):

– Der Orchesterbass des Agnus Dei zitiert das INTROITUS-Thema, wobei die Violinen mit einer canerizans-diminutio jenes Themas begleiten:

– Die Sopranstimme im Agnus Dei ist eindeutig mit dem schon zitierten Abschnitt „Ingemisco, tamquam reus“ aus dem Recordare verwandt.

Wie ist es möglich, dass nur in dieser Arbeit Süßmayrs ein solches Verfahren motivisch-thematischer Verknüpfung eindeutig nachzuweisen ist? Darüber hinaus bestehen innerhalb der süßmayrschen Sätze klare Widersprüche zwischen idiomatisch mozartischen und seltsam inkorrekten Stimmführungen:

A) Im Sanctus verlaufen die fünf ersten Takte des Chor-satzes harmonisch einwandfrei; bei der Sextakkordreihe in T. 4 fällt die Verteilung der dreistimmigen Parallelführung auf alle vier Stimmen (statt der normalen Führung mit drei Parallelstimmen und einer freien Linie), insbesondere im Hinblick auf die schon erwähnten Quintparallelen in der Orchesterbegleitung, auf:

* verdoppelter Leitton

Auf diese Stelle folgt ein auffälliger Querstand im Bass (C gegenüber Cis im vorherigen Takt); dann verläuft die Harmonik wenig zielstrebig zunächst nach e-Moll, dann über A-Dur (Halbschluss in D-Dur) und h-Moll vor der endgültigen Rückkehr nach D-Dur wegen der sich anschließenden Fuge. Kein einziges Sanctus von Mozart enthält solche harmonischen Unklarheiten; bei ihm verläuft die Harmonik konsequent und geradlinig.

B) Die Hosanna-Fuge zeigt eindeutig, dass Süßmayr nicht in der Lage war, eine ordentliche Fuge zu komponieren: Gleich nach dem Erklängen des thematisch organischen Subjektes begegnet man bereits in der Exposition unzulässigen Quartsextakkorden (T. 20, 22) und einem verdoppelten Tritonus (T. 19). Unmittelbar im Anschluss an die Exposition stürzt Süßmayr eilig in den Schluss, und das nach nur 28 Takten Gesamtlänge. Einen solchen Aufbau findet man weder bei Mozart noch sonst bei einem kompetenten Komponisten.

C) Das Benedictus weist eine Reihe bemerkenswerter Eigenschaften auf:

– Das Thema, wie schon lange bekannt,¹⁴ taucht auch im Unterrichtsheft für die Schülerin Barbara Ployer auf.¹⁵ Wie allerdings unten erläutert wird, geht diese Verwandtschaft über ein bloßes melodisches Zitat hinaus.

– Die Harmonisierung des ersten Taktes verdient viel mehr Aufmerksamkeit, als ihr bislang zuteil wurde. Wollte man diese Melodie harmonisieren, würde man wohl den ersten Ton als Quinte des Tonika-Akkordes verstehen. Es wäre selbstverständlich, zu Beginn des Taktes mit der Tonika im Bass einzusetzen, da eine Umkehrung am Anfang eines Satzes nicht einleuchtet. Genau das tat Barbara Ployer in ihrer ersten Fassung. Das Benedictus beginnt hingegen in zwei wesentlichen Punkten anders:

a) Die Melodie setzt allein an, die Begleitung hat eine Pause. Dieses Merkmal stellt eine weitere, wichtige Verbindung des Benedictus mit Mozarts eigener (nicht Ployers) Lösung seiner Kompositionsaufgabe dar. Eine solche Pause, vor allen Dingen am Anfang eines Satzes, ist alles andere als selbstverständlich.

b) Verblüffender als die rhythmische Ähnlichkeit mit Mozarts Harmonisierung im Ployer-Heft ist der harmonische Gehalt der ersten Takthälfte. Nach der Achtempause hören wir in der Begleitung keinen B-Dur-Dreiklang, sondern ¹⁴ Vgl. Robert Lach, Mozart als Theoretiker (Kaiserliche Akademie der Wissenschaften in Wien, Denkschriften Band 61, 1. Abhandlung), Wien 1918; S. 7.

¹⁵ Vgl. NMA X/30/2, S. 2/3 und 8/9.

die kleine Terz d^1-f^1 . Dieser Klang lässt sich als Bestandteil eines B-Dur-Akkordes verstehen – jedoch nicht zwangsläufig. Könnte man ihn nicht genauso gut als Tonika von d-Moll verstehen? Und darin erkennt man einen großen kompositorischen Wurf: der vorherige Satz hat in D-Dur geendet. Das Benedictus nach der D-Dur Tonika gleich mit f^1 in der Melodie und mit B im Bass zu beginnen, hieße das Publikum mit einem abrupten Tonartenwechsel zu konfrontieren. Diese unvermittelte Wendung wurde in der süßmayrschen Fassung geschickt vermieden: zunächst fühlt sich der Zuhörer in d-Moll. Erst wenn die zwei Begleitstimmen nach a und es^1 führen, erkennt der Hörer, dass es nach B-Dur geht. Dadurch gleicht der Satzanfang einer tonalen Verwandlung, der man in ähnlicher Art auch in den späten Streichquartetten von Beethoven begegnet.¹⁶

– Der Vokalsatz der Exposition ist in jeder Hinsicht so gut wie fehlerfrei; dagegen treten später Quintparallelen zwischen Alt und Tenor (T. 26–27) auf, und die Reprise zeigt eine eindeutige Stagnation in der melodischen Führung (T. 34–38).

– Die Unzulänglichkeiten in der Orchestereinleitung sind überall zu beobachten:¹⁷

T. 1: die 16tel-Wiederholung des b^1 in der Violine I;

T. 2: die Oktavparallelen zwischen Violine I/Bassetthorn I und Viola in den ersten zwei Achteln (die 16tel-Verzierung mit Akkordton in der Oberstimme kann diesen Fehler nicht entkräften);

T. 2/3: die Quartparallelen zwischen den Außenstimmen, mit der daraus entstehenden unvorbereiteten Dissonanz am Anfang des dritten Taktes;

T. 3: der Versuch, die Quintparallelen zwischen Violine I/Bassetthorn I und Viola/Fagott I durch die Antizipation des es vorzutäuschen (später bleibt diese Antizipation aus; vgl. etwa T. 6).¹⁸

T. 3: die konsekutiven Quinten zwischen Violine II und Bass; die nichtsolistische Verwendung der Posaunen in einem Satz ohne Chor.

In der Mitte weisen die Ritornelle auf der Dominanten (T. 18–22) und am Schluss in der Tonika (T. 50–54) indirekt auf den Abschnitt „et lux perpetua“ aus dem INTROITUS, wobei die Vereinfachung als Vergrößerung wirkt. Der Halbschluss in T. 22 unterbricht die Bewegung, und der eintaktige Übergang in T. 27 wirkt zu lang und stilistisch fremd.

Diese Punkte bekräftigen die Vermutung, dass „einige wenige Zettelchen mit Musik“ (Constanze Mozart), die Süßmayr außer Mozarts Handschrift von der Witwe erhielt, wohl über Mozarts Entwurf hinausgingen. Dass solche „Zettelchen“ existiert haben, gilt seit 1962, als Wolfgang Plath das oben erwähnte Skizzenblatt entdeckte, als erwiesen. Wir wissen auch, dass Constanze und Nissen 1799 viele Mozart-Skizzen vernichtet haben.¹⁹ Ob sich darunter Requiem-Skizzen befunden haben, lässt sich nicht mehr feststellen. Es ist auch durchaus möglich, dass Mozart Süßmayr einiges am Klavier vorgespielt hatte. Dass solche Hypothesen dem Bereich der Spekulation angehören, dürfte klar sein; gleichwohl ist zu betonen, dass die oben beschriebenen Details sich nicht mit Süßmayrs alleiniger Autorschaft in Einklang bringen lassen.

III. Die neueren Ergänzungen

In letzter Zeit haben sich mehrere Musiker bemüht, die Unzulänglichkeiten Süßmayrs im Requiem zu bereinigen. Diese Neufassungen sind mittlerweile in Konzerten aufgeführt, eingespielt und veröffentlicht worden. Dadurch kann ein unmittelbarer Einblick in die Problematik gewonnen werden.

Der Umfang dieser Bearbeitungen ist sehr verschieden. Bei Franz Beyer handelt es sich um eine Uminstrumentierung: er retuschiert mit wenigen Ausnahmen nur die Orchesterstimmen. Das Werk klingt in seiner Fassung eindeutig durchsichtiger und überzeugender als bei Süßmayr. Dabei bleiben allerdings die Fehler und Stilbrüche in den Gesangsstimmen bzw. im Aufbau unberührt, außerdem hat Beyer die Skizze zur Amen-Fuge in seiner Fassung nicht berücksichtigt. Die Ausgabe von H. C. Robbins Landon bildet eine Zusammenstellung aus Eybler und Süßmayr, in der Süßmayrs Fassung nach Möglichkeit durch die von Eyblers ersetzt wird; neues Material ist nur an den Nahtstellen zu finden. In Richard Maunders Edition begegnet man neuen Ergänzungen zum Lacrimosa und zum Agnus Dei sowie einer vervollständigten Amen-Fuge. Diese aber enthält Modulationen, wohingegen derartige Fugen aus dem 18. Jahrhundert in der Haupttonart bleiben, um dadurch nicht nur den Satz (Lacrimosa) sondern den ganzen Teil (die SEQUENZ) stabil abzuschließen; darüber hinaus fehlen die Sätze Sanctus/Hosanna und Benedictus, weil Maunders der festen Überzeugung ist, dass diese Sätze mit Mozart überhaupt nichts zu tun haben.²⁰ Eine radikalere Umgestaltung versucht Duncan Druce: außer einer ausführlichen Ergänzung der Amen-Fuge liegen Lacrimosa, Sanctus/Hosanna, Benedictus, Agnus Dei und sogar Lux aeterna in wagemutigen Neufassungen vor.²¹

IV. Zur vorliegenden Fassung

Allgemeines

Die vorliegende Ergänzung versucht, beide Haupttendenzen der neueren Fassungen zu berücksichtigen: Einerseits wurden die kompositorischen Probleme des Lacrimosa, der Amen-Fuge und der nur durch Süßmayr überlieferten Sätze nicht aus blindem Respekt vor deren 200-jähriger Herkunft für eine neue Bearbeitung außer Acht gelassen. Andererseits aber waren Tradition und Rezeption des Requiems unbedingt zu respektieren. Hier wurde absichtlich keine Trennlinie gezogen, nach der alles außer Mozarts autographem Entwurf hätte ausscheiden müssen. Ganz ¹⁶ Vgl. Streichquartett B-Dur, op. 130, 3. Satz; Streichquartett F-Dur, op. 135, 3. Satz.

¹⁷ Diese sind ausführlich erörtert in Richard Maunders, Mozart's Requiem: On Preparing a New Edition, Oxford 1988, S. 49–51.

¹⁸ Diese Situation ist merkwürdig, da solche Quinten gewöhnlich gestattet werden, wenn die zweite Quinte wie hier vermindert ist.

¹⁹ Freundliche Mitteilung von Dr. Ulrich Konrad, Freiburg i. Br.

²⁰ Jene Sätze sind zwar in einem Anhang in Süßmayrs Fassung wiedergegeben; jedoch scheint es wenig sinnvoll, Maunders Edition als Bereinigung der süßmayrschen heranzuziehen, dabei aber die von ihm verurteilten Sätze unverändert als Bestandteil seiner Version aufzuführen.

²¹ Darüber hinaus existieren unveröffentlichte Uminstrumentierungen und Ergänzungen von Marius Flothuis, Karl Marguerre u. v. a.

im Gegenteil: das Ziel war, nicht möglichst viel, sondern möglichst wenig zu retuschieren. Dabei wurde angestrebt, Charakter, Gefüge, Stimmführung, Verlauf und Struktur der Musik Mozarts nachzuahmen. Wo die überlieferte Fassung Mozarts Verfahren entspricht, wurde sie beibehalten. Im Interesse der Selbständigkeit der neuen Fassung wurden zur Ergänzung nur folgende Vorlagen herangezogen:

– Mozarts Fragment (INTROITUS – SEQUENZ – OFFERTORIUM) sowie die autographe Skizze zur Amen-Fuge; – Gesangsstimmen und Orchesterbass von Süßmayrs Fassung zu den Sätzen Lacrimosa, Sanctus/Hosanna, Benedictus, AGNUS DEI und die vollständige Partitur zur COMMUNIO. Angesichts der satztechnischen und stilistischen Problematik hatten sie jedoch lediglich bloß als Vorbild zu dienen.

So konnte die Arbeit in Angriff genommen werden, ohne durch die historischen Instrumentierungen von Eybler und Süßmayr (geschweige denn durch neuere Ergänzungsversuche) beeinflusst zu sein. Dass sich dabei einige Übereinstimmungen mit den neueren Fassungen ergeben haben, zeigt, wie objektive stilistische Untersuchungen gelegentlich zu einstimmigen Ergebnissen führen können.

Zur Neugliederung

In Leopold Nowaks Ausgabe des Requiems innerhalb der Neuen Mozart-Ausgabe²² hat das Werk folgende Einteilung:

- I. INTROITUS
Requiem
- II. KYRIE
- III. SEQUENZ
Nr. 1 Dies irae
Nr. 2 Tuba mirum
Nr. 3 Rex tremendae
Nr. 4 Recordare
Nr. 5 Confutatis
Nr. 6 Lacrimosa
- IV. OFFERTORIUM
Nr. 1 Domine Jesu
Nr. 2 Hostias
- V. SANCTUS
- VI. Benedictus
- VII. AGNUS DEI
- VIII. COMMUNIO
Lux aeterna

Diese Einteilung, wie Nowaks Ausgabe überhaupt, wird von Beyer übernommen.²³ Leider entspricht sie nicht ganz Mozarts eigener Gliederung, worin INTROITUS (Requiem) und Kyrie-Fuge als zusammengehörige Satzteile notiert sind (genauso wie Süßmayr in der COMMUNIO die Cum sanctis tuis-Fuge als Teil des Lux aeterna verstand – von Nowak auch berücksichtigt).²⁴ Dazu bilden Sanctus und Benedictus durch die Wiederholung der Hosanna-Fuge eine Einheit, genau wie Domine Jesu und Hostias. Die sich ergebende Einteilung, die zurecht von Christoph Wolff vorgeschlagen wurde,²⁵ lautet:

- [1. INTROITUS]
Requiem
KYRIE
- [2. SEQUENZ]
Dies irae
Tuba mirum
Rex tremendae
Recordare
Confutatis
Lacrimosa
Amen
- [3. OFFERTORIUM]
Domine Jesu
Hostias
- [4.] SANCTUS
Benedictus
- [5.] AGNUS DEI
[COMMUNIO:]
Lux aeterna
Cum sanctis tuis

Obige Einteilung entspricht Mozarts Überschriften, wobei alles, was in eckigen Klammern steht, nur zum Zweck des liturgischen Überblickes hinzugefügt wurde. Daraus wird ein grundsätzliches Organisationsprinzip deutlich: jeder Abschnitt schließt mit einer Fuge (Kyrie, Amen, Quam olim Abrahae, Hosanna, Cum sanctis tuis). Die Anbindung des AGNUS DEI an die COMMUNIO hängt mit der musikalischen Anbindung, wie sie Süßmayr vornimmt, zusammen, die ebenfalls in der neuen Fassung berücksichtigt wird. Als einzige praktische Folge der Neugliederung werden die Taktzahlen für INTROITUS/Kyrie und AGNUS DEI/COMMUNIO durchnummeriert.

Zur Instrumentierung

Von den 14 Sätzen bzw. Abschnitten des Requiems besitzen wir einen quasi vollständigen Teilsatz, das Requiem aeternam,²⁶ dazu vollständige Entwürfe von acht und einen Teilentwurf bzw. eine Skizze von noch zwei weiteren Sätzen. Die stilgerechte Übernahme eines Teiles des ersten Satzes für das Lux aeterna und des Kyrie für das Cum sanctis tuis durch Süßmayr ergibt die folgende Satzübersicht:

Von Mozart vollendet:

1 ½ (Requiem/Lux aeterna)

Von Mozart entworfen (Orchesterbegleitung zu ergänzen):

8 ½ (einschließlich Cum sanctis tuis)

Begonnen bzw. skizziert:

2 (Lacrimosa, Amen)

Nur durch Süßmayr überliefert: 3

²² Vgl. Fußnote 1.

²³ Bei Maunder gibt es keine besondere Einteilung.

²⁴ Bei Süßmayr sind AGNUS DEI und COMMUNIO ebenfalls fortlaufend notiert; vgl. unten.

²⁵ a. a. O., S. 67–75.

²⁶ Wolff hat zurecht bemerkt, dass Süßmayrs Brief vom 8. Februar 1800 an Breitkopf & Härtel nicht nur die SEQUENZ und das OFFERTORIUM sondern den Kyrie- und sogar den Requiem-Teilsatz von Mozarts Partitur-Entwurf als unvollständig bezeichnet; a. a. O., S. 27. Damit wird zum ersten Mal die Frage einer etwaigen Ergänzungsarbeit im INTROITUS erhoben; vgl. weiter unten.

So schwierig die Herausforderung der zu ergänzenden Sätze auch sein mag, so bildet trotzdem die Revision der 8½ Sätze die größte Aufgabe einer Neufassung. Süßmayrs Verstöße gegen Mozarts Stil bestehen nicht nur aus den schon erörterten grammatikalischen Fehlern, sondern aus einem zu dicken Orchestersatz, der Chor bzw. Vokalsolisten als tragende Ausdruckskraft des Werkes verdeckt. Es wird behauptet, dass der Schlüssel zu Mozarts vermutlicher Instrumentierung des Requiems in den zeitgenössischen Opern Die Zauberflöte und La Clemenza di Tito zu suchen wäre (Tatsächlich ist Die Zauberflöte das einzige sonstige Werk Mozarts, in dem Bassetthörner, Fagotte und Posaunen vorgeschrieben sind). Die stilistischen Gemeinsamkeiten in Mozarts Instrumentalkonzerten und Opern sind unbestritten, jedoch sind Rhetorik und Ausdruck seiner geistlichen Musik wesensmäßig ganz andersartig. Der Charakter eines mozartischen Werkes beruht gleichermaßen auf Melodik, Harmonik, Phrasierung, der Beziehung zwischen etwaigen Solisten (instrumental/vokal oder einem Chor) und dem Orchester, klanglichen Merkmalen (größeres bzw. kleineres Orchester, Schlichtheit bzw. Farbigkeit), Gefüge (massiv, durchsichtig) und Stilrichtung (die etwa in seiner Kirchenmusik oft archaisierend wirkt). Für diese Neufassung wurde zwar Mozarts später Orchesterstil untersucht, jedoch durfte die grundsätzliche Klangwelt eines Kirchenmusikwerkes – und besonders einer Totenmesse – weder vom Klangbild einer, trotz ernsthafter Züge, lustigen deutschen Oper noch von dem einer opera seria bestimmt werden.²⁷ Mozarts vorgeschriebene Orchesterbesetzung für das Requiem zielt von vornherein auf ein relativ schlichtes Klangbild. Flöten, Oboen und Hörner sind nicht besetzt. Die gelegentlich geäußerte Ansicht, Mozart hätte vielleicht die Instrumentierung im Laufe des Werkes abgeändert, ist nicht zwingend. In seinen Kirchenmusikwerken wird die Besetzung des Eingangssatzes nicht überschritten, wobei freilich die Möglichkeit des Austauschs etwa von Oboe durch Flöte oder von Bassetthorn durch Klarinette in der damaligen Zeit zu berücksichtigen wäre.²⁸ Jedenfalls ist eine eher transparente Begleitung auch deshalb wünschenswert, um Mozarts Anteil am Ganzen möglichst deutlich hörbar zu machen.

Oberste Priorität galt einer durchsichtigeren Instrumentation, die in erster Linie von Mozarts sonstiger Kirchenmusik abzuleiten war: Mit der Tendenz, die Streicher lediglich zweistimmig (Violinen unisono und Viola/Basso unisono) oder dreistimmig (Violine I, Violine II und Viola/Basso unisono) verlaufen zu lassen, lehnt sich die vorliegende Ergänzung an Mozarts Salzburger Kirchenmusikwerke an, in denen keine Bratschen beteiligt sind. Der Chor rückt somit wieder in den Vordergrund. Dadurch hört man zum Beispiel den sechsstimmigen Tripelkanon im Rex tremendae (Violine I/II – Viola, Basso; Alt – Sopran; Tenor – Bass), unbeeinträchtigt von der gewichtigen Führung in Terzparallelen (Violine I – Violine II, Viola – Basso), die Süßmayr von Eyblers Fassung übernahm. Dazu wurde oft vor wichtigen Kadenzstellen auf eine Orchesterbegleitung verzichtet, um die führende Rolle des Chores bzw. der Gesangssolisten zu betonen.

Die von Freystädler vorgenommenen Verdopplungen in der Kyrie-Fuge entsprechen Mozarts Praxis in den Chor-fugen der c-Moll-Messe KV 427 (Cum Sancto Spiritu, Hosanna) und wurden beibehalten (vgl. auch weiter unten):

Sopran = Bassetthorn I, Violine I
 Alt = Bassetthorn II, Altposaune, Violine II
 Tenor = Fagott I, Tenorposaune, Viola
 Bass = Fagott II, Bassposaune, Violoncello/Basso/Orgel

Diese Praxis wurde auch für die Amen- und Hosanna-Fugen verwendet. Die angedeutete obligate Führung der Violine I für die Quam olim Abrahae-Fuge erfordert dort eine andere Lösung; vgl. unten.

Zu den Posaunen

Die Mitwirkung der Posaunen zur Verstärkung des Chores war in Mozarts Salzburger Kirchenmusik eine Selbstverständlichkeit. Dass die Posaunen aber nicht ohne Weiteres bloß colla parte zu blasen hatten, kann man z. B. aus den erhaltenen Stimmen von Teilen der c-Moll-Messe entnehmen. Leider pflegte Mozart mit wenigen Ausnahmen keine selbständigen Posaunenstimmen in die Partituren seiner Kirchenmusikwerke einzutragen, sondern notierte sparsame Hinweise bezüglich der Posaunenmitwirkung in die Chorsysteme. Aufgrund von Tintenfarbe und Einrichtung dieser Hinweise ist zu vermuten, dass diese Arbeit der Schlussphase einer Niederschrift angehörte.²⁹ Da Mozart im Requiem dazu nicht mehr kam, findet sich an nur einer einzigen Stelle – T. 7–8 des INTROITUS – ein eindeutiger Hinweis zum Mitspielen der Posaunen. Anhand seiner sonstigen Kirchenmusikwerke können aber einige Richtlinien formuliert werden, die zwar nicht verbindlich, jedoch behilflich sein sollen. Das Schweigen der Posaunen am Schluss des INTROITUS etwa, oder im letzten Abschnitt des Confutatis, beruht auf einer auch sonst bei Mozart zu findenden Praxis.³⁰ Die rhythmische Vereinfachung einzelner Tonwiederholungen, die mit der Textierung im Chor zusammenhängt, kann auch belegt werden.³¹ Auf folgende Entscheidungen wird besonders hingewiesen:

²⁷ Würde seine Besetzung Streicher miteinschließen, wäre der Chor „O Isis und Osiris“ ein überzeugenderer Präzedenzfall für das Requiem. Im Vergleich mit Mozarts großem Korpus kirchenmusikalischer Werke wäre es höchst unwahrscheinlich, dass er einen Satz des Requiems für Bläser ohne Streicher besetzt hätte; und es hat bislang keinen Ergänzungsversuch gegeben, der eine solche Lösung vorgestellt hat, auch nicht für mehr als einige Takte. Eine wichtigere Vorlage wäre das Kyrie d-Moll KV 341, dessen Tonart und Entstehungszeit nach Neudatierung nähere Gemeinsamkeiten mit dem Requiem bilden. Jedoch ist die Orchesterbesetzung dieses Satzes mit jeweils zwei Flöten, Oboen, Klarinetten, Fagotten und vier Hörnern mit Trompeten, Pauken und Streichern wesentlich umfangreicher als jene des Requiems.

²⁸ Dem ersten Fall begegnet man in der c-Moll-Messe KV 427/417a. Die Besetzung enthält zwei Oboen; allein im Et incarnatus est taucht eine Flöte auf. Da der Satz nur eine Oboe vorschreibt, ist anzunehmen, dass die Flötenstimme von einem der Oboisten übernommen wurde. In Mozarts Konzerten tauchen häufig zwei Flöten mit zwei Oboen auf (Violinkonzert G-Dur, KV 216; Klavierkonzert B-Dur, KV 238; u. a. m.) Der zweite Fall kommt in den Opern Die Entführung aus dem Serail und in der Zauberflöte vor: Mozart verwendet Klarinetten- und Bassetthornpaare, jedoch nie zusammen.

²⁹ Über diesen Tatbestand in der c-Moll-Messe vgl. NMA I/1, Abt. 1, Band 5, Vorwort (Monika Holl/Karlheinz Köhler), S. XVII.

³⁰ Vgl. c-Moll-Messe, Kyrie, T. 27; Cum Sancto Spiritu, T. 53f. bzw. 73f.

³¹ Vgl. etwa c-Moll-Messe, Qui tollis.

Rex tremendae: Der solistische Einsatz der Posaunen unmittelbar vor dem Choreinsatz im INTROITUS scheint sein Pendant im Rex tremendae zu haben (T. 2–3). Doch muss diese Analogie nicht zwingend sein; bei günstiger Akustik kann der Klang der Bläser völlig ausreichen. Jedenfalls ist der vorzeitige Einsatz der Posaunen im ersten Takt der Süßmayrschen Ergänzung wohl verfehlt: er verhindert den Überraschungseffekt des Choreinsatzes zwei Takte später. In T. 6–7 schreibt Süßmayr eigenständige Posaunenstimmen in Viertelnoten, wobei die Bassposaune den Chorbass tiefoktaviert. Diese Lesart, erstmals in Nowaks NMA-Edition wiedergegeben, wurde jedoch nicht berücksichtigt, weil der textbedingte Chorrhythmus dem Autor der vorliegenden Ergänzung aus dramaturgischen Gründen wichtiger erschien.

Confutatis: Auf Beyers Vorschlag, die Tenorstimme durch Tenor- und Altposaune zu verdoppeln und als Gegengewicht die beiden Fagottstimmen mit der Bassposaune spielen zu lassen, kam auch der Autor dieser Ergänzung. Letztendlich wurde doch die konventionellere Lösung (ein Fagott mit einer Posaune pro Stimme) gewählt.

Domine Jesu: Die Stimmen wurden gelegentlich rhythmisch vereinfacht (vgl. T. 3, 21–28, 71–74).

Hostias: Vgl. unten die Frage der Dynamik. Solange piano als Grunddynamik galt, wäre Süßmayrs Entscheidung plausibel, die Posaunen für diesen Satz zu streichen. Mit der Wiederherstellung der forte-Dynamik dagegen ist die Lage nicht mehr so eindeutig. Da eine colla-parte-Führung bei allen forte-Stellen keinesfalls abwegig wäre, erscheinen die Posaunen ad libitum in der Neufassung.

Benedictus: Auf Süßmayrs obligate Führung der Posaunen sowie auf die Mitwirkung der Trompeten wurde verzichtet.

Zur Orgelstimme

Mozarts Partitur schreibt die Mitwirkung der Orgel – ohnehin eine Selbstverständlichkeit in einem Kirchenmusikwerk – vor. Die Überlieferung ist jedoch in mancherlei Hinsicht inkonsequent.

1. Solo/Tutti. Wie in seinen Salzburger Kirchenmusikwerken unterscheidet Mozart in der Requiem-Partitur zwischen „Solo“ und „Tutti“ in der Orgelstimme. Diese Bezeichnung bezieht sich auf die dortige Praxis, eine „Solo-Orgel“ für das Spiel mit dem Orchester bzw. mit den Gesangssolisten und eine „Tutti-Orgel“ für das Spiel mit dem Chor zu verwenden.³² So häufig diese Bezeichnungen auch in dem Requiem-Autograph enthalten sind, so sind sie doch nicht ganz vollständig und fehlen in den von Süßmayr ergänzten Sätzen (Lacrimosa, Sanctus/Hosanna, Benedictus, Agnus Dei). In der vorliegenden Neufassung sind sie zum ersten Mal konsequent ergänzt worden.

2. Bezifferung und Mitwirkung in den einzelnen Sätzen. Mozart hat die Orgelstimme in seinem Entwurf weitgehend beziffert. In den folgenden Sätzen fehlt jedoch die Bezifferung zum Teil oder vollständig:

Tuba mirum

Rex tremendae (außer T. 2)

Recordare

Confutatis (vor T. 26)

Lacrimosa (für den achttaktigen Entwurf)

Domine Jesu (außer T. 21–28)

Hostias

Aus Mozarts eigenhändiger Bezeichnung geht hervor, dass das Tuba mirum ohne Orgel zu spielen ist. Für das Recordare dagegen schreibt Mozart die Mitwirkung der Orgel vor. Eine Bezifferung für jenen Satz fehlt aber sowohl in allen überlieferten Quellen als auch in den neueren Ausgaben; auch in der vorliegenden Ergänzung wird darauf verzichtet. Die separat erschienene Orgelstimme enthält eine Aussetzung für diesen Satz.

Für die fehlende Bezifferung der sonstigen Sätze wird diejenige von Süßmayr dort übernommen, wo sie auch die Harmonik der neuen Ergänzung stützt; jedoch ließ selbst Süßmayr das Rex tremendae, den Schluss des Domine Jesu sowie den ganzen Satz Hostias unbeziffert. Hier greift die neue Fassung, wie auch die bisherigen Ausgaben, auf den Erstdruck der Stimmen (1812) zurück.

Bei dem Orgelpunkt auf der Dominante in der Quam olim Abrahae-Fuge (T. 61–64 bzw. nach dem Hostias, T. 72–75) wurde Süßmayrs Bezifferung stilgemäß durch die Bezeichnung „tasto solo“ ersetzt; in der gleichen Fuge werden seine vorzeitigen Auflösungen der Vorhalte in der Bezifferung (mit den 16tel-Antizipationen der Chorstimmen) korrigiert, also Für die neu ergänzten bzw. weitgehend umgearbeiteten Sätze (Amen-Fuge, Sanctus/Hosanna, Benedictus) musste die Bezifferung selbstverständlich neu eingerichtet werden. Im Gegensatz zu Nowaks Edition für die NMA wurde auf eine Vereinheitlichung der Bezifferung Mozarts verzichtet. Im Grunde genommen verwendet Mozart die durchgestrichene 8 und 4+ zur Kennzeichnung des Leittones bzw. des Tritonus nur selten; vielmehr setzt er die Vorzeichen vor (nicht nach) die Ziffer. Für die Terz über dem Basston schreibt er meistens auch die Ziffer 3, jedoch nicht immer.³³ Diese Gepflogenheiten scheinen interessant und wertvoll genug, um sie beizubehalten. Es könnte sein, dass einige dieser Unterscheidungsmerkmale auf Feinheiten der harmonischen Vorstellung beruhen, die seitdem verloren gegangen sind. Deren Beibehaltung bereitet keinem versierten Organisten Probleme; dazu gibt es die gedruckte Aussetzung, die eher als Notlösung zu betrachten ist.

³² Vgl. die Messenbände der NMA.

³³ Zu all diesen Einzelheiten vgl. die Faksimileausgaben.

Zu den Tempobezeichnungen

Im überlieferten Fragment Mozarts bzw. in Süßmayrs Ergänzung fehlen Tempobezeichnungen zu einigen Sätzen. Hier ein Überblick:

Satz	Tempoangabe
	Mozart	Süßmayr (wenn anders)
Requiem/Kyrie	Adagio - Allegro
Dies irae	Allegro assai
Tuba mirum	Andante
Rex tremendae	unbezeichnet
Recordare	unbezeichnet
Confutatis	Andante
Lacrimosa	unbezeichnet
Domine Jesu	unbezeichnet	Andante con moto
Hostias	unbezeichnet	Andante
Sanctus/Hosanna	_____	Adagio - Allegro
Benedictus	_____	Andante
Agnus Dei	_____	unbezeichnet
Lux aeterna/ Cum sanctis tuis	_____	Adagio - Allegro

Süßmayrs Bezeichnungen sind angemessen und wurden übernommen. Auf Neuzeichnungen der übrigen Sätze wurde verzichtet. Die innere Bewegung jener Sätze lässt ohne Weiteres ein vernünftiges Tempo erahnen. Die Erfahrung lehrt, dass interpretatorische Vorstellungen nicht vom Komponisten einer Ergänzung zu erzwingen sind; er möchte sie deshalb lieber den Aufführenden überlassen.

Zur Dynamik

In seiner Ergänzung benutzt Süßmayr zum Teil eine von Mozart abweichende Dynamik. Die von Mozart äußerst selten verwendete Bezeichnung fortissimo taucht in der Ergänzung zum Rex tremendae (wo sie in Mozarts Entwurf nicht vorkommt) auf, sowie im Benedictus und Agnus Dei. Auch fz (nicht sf wie bei Mozart) findet sich, etwa im Benedictus. In den von Mozart entworfenen Sätzen wurden Süßmayrs dynamische Veränderungen getilgt. Außerdem gibt es hinsichtlich der Dynamik in zwei Sätzen besondere Probleme.

Hostias: In der üblichen Interpretation dieses Satzes werden die Takte 1–22 piano musiziert; erst von T. 23 an geht man zu forte über. Allerdings enthält Mozarts Entwurf keine dynamische Bezeichnung zu Satzbeginn, und kein forte in T. 23: seine erste Dynamikangabe ist piano in T. 24. Gemäß damaliger Praxis wäre forte in T. 1 zu verstehen, das erst durch das piano auf dem 3. Taktteil von T. 24 aufgehoben wäre. Mit dieser Interpretation (forte T. 1–24, piano auf dem dritten Taktteil von T. 24, dann weiter wie von Mozart bezeichnet) wäre Mozarts dynamische Bezeichnung vollständig; auch wären die kleinen Orchesterritornelle in T. 1–2, 21–22 und 44–45 konsequent forte, im Gegensatz zur heutigen Praxis (piano für T. 1–2 und 21–22, forte für T. 44–45). Es ist sehr unwahrscheinlich, dass Mozart das piano am Anfang und das forte in T. 23 vergaß, wodurch die heutige Interpretation allenfalls zu rechtfertigen wäre. Mit dem forte am Anfang entsteht ein dramatischer Kontrast zum Schluss des Satzes, in dem das Hauptthema dann erst ab T. 46 im piano erklingt.

Agnus Dei: In Süßmayrs Fassung ist für das Orchester der Wechsel zwischen forte bzw. mf auf dem ersten Taktteil und piano auf dem zweiten vorgeschrieben; dagegen singt der Chor forte. Beyer ersetzt diese Dynamikangaben durch piano und lässt Chor und Orchester durch ein crescendo jeweils zum Phrasenschluss hin steigern. Musikalisch hat diese Lösung viel für sich. Die vorliegende Fassung folgt der Lesart der Überlieferung (allerdings mit fp anstelle mf p, um eine angemessene Balance zwischen Chor und Orchester zu erreichen), doch ließe sich Beyers Vorschlag leicht ausführen. In der dritten Phrase (T. 34–41) fügt die neue Fassung einen Registerwechsel ein (vgl. unten), wie er im Recordare und Hostias vorhanden ist. Der dynamische Kontrast des Hostias-Abschnittes wurde hier übernommen; daraus ergibt sich eine Dynamik von forte (T. 34–36), piano in T. 36, und von crescendo zu mf in T. 38–40 (wobei auch f denkbar wäre). Im Hinblick auf den Aufbau des gesamten Satzes wurde auf Süßmayrs crescendo am Schluss verzichtet.

Zur Artikulation

Die Artikulation ist nicht gemäß Mozarts üblicher Praxis detailliert ergänzt worden. Auf streng einheitliche Artikulation bei Chor und Posaunen einerseits und beim übrigen Orchester andererseits wurde aufgrund Mozarts sonstiger Praxis ebenfalls verzichtet. Mit wenigen Ausnahmen in den frühen Salzburger Messen tauchen Keile in den Chorstimmen, Posaunen und Pauken relativ selten auf. Angleichungen, die auf Parallelstellen basieren, beschränken sich auf einige relativ eindeutige Fälle. Süßmayrs Keile für das Thema der Hosanna-Fuge wurden beibehalten, ebenso die Keile samt Bögen in der Cum sanctis tuis-Fuge ab T. 117, allerdings wegen der Umtextierung abgeändert (vgl. unten).

Zur Textierung

Der lateinische Text wird in moderner Rechtschreibung (etwa Lacrimosa statt Lacrymosa) wiedergegeben. Übernommen wurde auch die drei- bzw. viersilbige Vertonung von „e-le-i-son“ in der Kyrie-Fuge. In der Cum sanctis tuis-Fuge erfolgte eine konsequente Umtextierung, da in Süßmayrs Fassung die Phrase „quia pius es“ erst in den drei letzten Takten erscheint. Diese Behandlung verstößt gegen die allgemeine kirchenmusikalische Praxis des 18. Jahrhunderts; außer bei unmittelbarer Wiederholung einzelner Wörter wäre die ganze Phrase („Cum sanctis tuis in aeternum quia pius es“) zu vertonen, ehe sie neu beginnen dürfte.³⁴ Im Lux aeterna vertont auch Süßmayr jeweils den ganzen Satz im Zusammenhang (T. 59–61, 61–67 in vorliegender Fassung).

³⁴ Vgl. die Requiem-Vertonungen von M. Haydn, Jomelli usw. Dagegen ist Maunders Entscheidung, diese Phrase aufzuteilen – „Cum sanctis tuis“ für den Bass, „in aeternum“ für den Alt – um die Gestalt der Kyrie-Fuge nachzuahmen, eigentlich nicht zu rechtfertigen. Eine solche Selbständigkeit trifft für die Textabschnitte „Kyrie eleison“ und „Christe eleison“ zu, kaum jedoch für den vorliegenden Fall.

Zu den einzelnen Sätzen

Requiem-Kyrie: Jahrelang behauptete die Mozartforschung, Mozart habe INTROITUS und Kyrie vollständig instrumentiert, so auch Nowak in der NMA. Nachdem Franz Beyer auf die wiederholten Transpositionsfehler in den Bassetthörnern der Kyrie-Fuge hingewiesen hatte, revidierte Nowak seine Meinung: die Holzbläser-, Violin- und Violastimmen seien von Freystädler eingetragen, die Trompeten- und Paukenstimmen von Süßmayr ergänzt worden.³⁵ In seiner Monographie weist Wolff auf die Möglichkeit hin, dass Teile der Orchestrierung des INTROITUS auch von Süßmayr stammen könnten.³⁶ Die verschiedenen Tintenfarben deuten auf die typisch mozartisch mehrschichtige Niederschrift, jedoch könnte es durchaus sein, dass die Trompeten- und Paukenstimmen gegen Ende des Satzes von Süßmayr eingetragen wurden.³⁷ Mit allem Vorbehalt wird deshalb eine Alternativ-Fassung dieser Stimmen für T. 43–44 und für die Parallelstelle im Lux aeterna angeboten; die Hauptfassung folgt der Überlieferung. In der Kyrie-Fuge wurde die Stimmführung der Bassetthörner dort geändert, wo der Sopran höher verläuft als die von Mozart beachtete Obergrenze jener Instrumente (notiertes *d*³, klingend *g*²); das Gleiche wird in der Cum sanctis tuis-Fuge angeboten. Längere Werte ersetzen in den Bläsern und Streichern gelegentlich textbezogene Tonwiederholungen stilgerecht. Am Schluss des Satzes wurden kleinere rhythmische Inkonsistenzen in den Streicherstimmen beseitigt.

Dies irae: Die Streicher werden oft zweistimmig geführt, um das Satzgefüge durchsichtiger zu machen. Auf eine bloße Verdopplung des Chores durch die Bläser wurde jedoch verzichtet, um diesen Instrumenten mehr Selbständigkeit zu geben. In T. 29–30 laufen die Posaunen unabhängig, um den weiteren musikalischen Verlauf zu unterstreichen. Die Dissonanzen zwischen Trompeten-Pauken und dem Vorhalt gis im Chorbass (T. 40–41, 44–45, 48–49) blieben wegen des Textes „Quantus tremor est futurus“ absichtlich bestehen.

Tuba mirum: Auf eine Weiterführung der Solo-Posaunenstimme – wie bei Süßmayr – wurde verzichtet. Die sehr sparsame Instrumentierung der Bläser bis zum Abschnitt für das Solo-Quartett soll die Behandlung der Vokalstimmen widerspiegeln.

Rex tremendae: Zur Behandlung der Posaunen vgl. oben. Die Vereinfachung der Streicherführung in T. 7–15 wurde schon erörtert, ebenso die Begründung für die a cappella-Führung des Chores am Schluss. Eine Verdopplung jener Passage durch pochende Achtel in Verbindung mit dem von Mozart notierten Coda-Takt in der ersten Violine wäre vielleicht konsequent, jedoch (nach Meinung des Autors der Ergänzung) weniger aussagekräftig.

Recordare: Im Gegensatz zu allen bisherigen Ergänzungen dieses Satzes wurden die Vokalstimmen möglichst nicht verdoppelt. Das Gewicht einer ständigen Streicher- bzw. Bläserverdopplung behindert die Solisten; in der vorliegenden Fassung können sie frei musizieren.³⁸

Confutatis: Der Holzbläsersatz in T. 6–7 bzw. 16–17 ist der süßmayrschen Fassung frei entnommen; die Alternativen (vor allen Dingen der gestrichene Querstand in T. 6) haben jedoch viel für sich.

Lacrimosa: Dieser Satz wurde in der durch Süßmayr überlieferten Gestalt grundsätzlich belassen.³⁹ Harmonische Widersprüche und fragwürdige Stimmführungen (Chorbass, T. 9–14; Sopran, T. 13–14) wurden korrigiert. Das Ritornell T. 19–21 stellt ein interessantes Phänomen dar. In Süßmayrs Fassung hat diese Orchesterpassage eine Doppelfunktion: zum einen ist sie die Bestätigung der soeben erreichten Paralleltonart F-Dur, zum anderen die Rückleitung in die Haupttonart d-Moll. Für einen so kurzen Abschnitt (drei Takte!) erscheint diese Doppelfunktion äußerst fragwürdig; Mozart überträgt vielmehr die Aufgabe, den Satz nach der tonalen Bestätigung des Orchesters weiterzuführen, üblicherweise einem Solisten (im vorliegenden Fall dem Chor). Außerdem enthält T. 21 der süßmayrschen Fassung nichts Neues, folglich erscheint dreimal dieselbe Aussage. Die eintaktige Kürzung der neuen Ergänzung vermeidet diese Tautologie. Die Berücksichtigung der Amen-Fuge verlangt die Einmündung in den Halbschluss statt in Süßmayrs Vollschluss. Bei der Umarbeitung wurde Süßmayrs metrisch ungenaues Zitat des INTROITUS-Themas (T. 26–27 seiner Fassung) in ein genaues (T. 24–25) mit Antwort auf der Dominante (Tenor, T. 25–26) umgewandelt.⁴⁰

Amen: Betrachtet man die zwei von Mozart entworfenen Fugen (Kyrie, Quam olim Abrahae), so fällt auf, dass sie in zwei verschiedenen Stilen geschrieben sind – die erste streng nach händelschem Vorbild, die zweite mit einem loseren Chorgefüge, das auf dem unterstützenden Motiv in Orchesterbass und Violine beruht und eindeutig rokokohafte Züge trägt (T. 67–71). Da Mozarts Skizze zur Amen-Fuge einen sehr verschlungenen, „schwierigen“ Kontrapunkt vorschreibt (man vergleiche die Stimmkreuzungen), wurde absichtlich eine sehr reibungsgeladene Führung der Stimmen gewählt. Die Qual und Angst des jüngsten Gerichtes (d.h. der SEQUENZ) schien diese durch Dissonanzen geprägte Lösung strukturell wie dramaturgisch zu rechtfertigen. Dass eine solche kontrapunktische Musiksprache beim späten Mozart auftritt, ist leicht zu belegen: vgl. u.a. das Streichquartett F-Dur KV 590, 4. Satz, T. 86–96 bzw. 257–267; das Streichquintett D-Dur KV 593, 2. Satz, T. 53–56, und die Fantasie f-Moll für eine Orgelwalze KV 608. Aus den schon erwähnten Gründen wurde Wert darauf gelegt, die Fuge nichtmodulierend auszuführen.

³⁶ Vgl. Fußnote 26.

³⁷ Man vergleiche das Schriftbild des INTROITUS in T. 43–44 mit Süßmayrs Trompeten- und Paukenstimmen in der Kyrie-Fuge.

³⁸ Eyblers und Süßmayrs Entscheidung, die Gesangsstimmen durch die Streicher von T. 14 an zu verdoppeln, widerspricht den von Mozart notierten Viertelnoten in beiden Violinstimmen am Taktanfang.

³⁹ Zeitgenössische Vertonungen belegen, dass der Umfang des Satz damals gering zu halten war.

⁴⁰ Den Hinweis auf diese motivische Beziehung verdanke ich Christoph Wolff: a.a.O., S. 113–114.

Domine Jesu: Ziel war eine durchsichtige Instrumentierung – man achte insbesondere auf die Behandlung der Streicher in T. 32–40. In der Quam olim Abrahae-Fuge wurde, im Gegensatz zu Beyer, das Violinmotiv während der gesamten Fuge streng beibehalten. Dies ist nicht nur eine Geschmacksfrage: der Text ist eine Bitte an Gott, sein Wort zu halten, und eine gewisse Beständigkeit schien deswegen unerlässlich. Dagegen wurden bis auf den Orgelpunkt auf der Dominante (T. 61) die Streicher von T. 47 an zweistimmig behandelt (Violine I und II – Viola und Basso). Die colla parte-Führung der Bläser wäre keinesfalls verpflichtend, wurde jedoch nach dem Vorbild der c-Moll-Messe ausgeführt – selbstverständlich mit den notwendigen Änderungen im Bassethorn I (obere Umfangsgrenze) und in den Posaunen (teilweise rhythmische Vereinfachung).

Hostias: Über Dynamik und mögliche colla parte-Führung der Posaunen vgl. oben. Die etwas auffallende Stimmführung der Violinen I in T. 37–38 wurde gewählt, um eine Verbindung mit der Schlussfigur (T. 53–54) herzustellen.

Sanctus/Hosanna: Die Beibehaltung der Tonart D-Dur – angefochten von Maunder,⁴¹ der einwandte, dass diese strahlende Tonart dem Geist einer Totenmesse fremd sei⁴² – bedarf einer Erklärung: Mozarts Moll-Messen („Waisenhaus“-Messe KV 139/114a, c-Moll-Messe KV 427/417a) enthalten Dur-Vertonungen des Sanctus. Für die Beibehaltung der gleichen Tonika sprechen auch praktische Gründe, und zwar die Notwendigkeit, einen Wechsel der Trompeten und Pauken zu vermeiden, der ohne Beispiel in Mozarts geistlicher Musik wäre. Dass D-Dur von Mozart vorgesehen war, kann auch aus dem Anfang des Benedictus mit dessen bereits erläuterten Übergang⁴³ entnommen werden. Die Wahl dieser Tonart hat aber Folgen für die Bassethörner. Süßmayrs Entscheidung, für die F-Bassethörner in A-Dur zu schreiben, widerspricht Mozarts eindeutiger Praxis in der Behandlung der Klarinetten-Familie. Mozart schrieb für Klarinetten in A, B, C und H⁴⁴ sowie für Bassethörner in F und G. In keinem einzigen Fall ist für Klarinette oder Bassethorn mehr als ein Kreuz vorgezeichnet. Für einen Sanctus-Satz in D-Dur gibt es dann nur zwei Möglichkeiten: G-Bassethörner in G-Dur notiert, oder A-Klarinetten in F-Dur notiert. So verlockend die Vorstellung, das Bassethorn als oberstes Blasinstrument weiterhin einzusetzen, auch sein mag, sie ist für die heutige Praxis belanglos: es gibt keine G-Bassethörner mehr. So blieb nur die Möglichkeit, A-Klarinetten zu verwenden. Der von Spielern geäußerte Einwand, es sei gegen die Praxis der damaligen Zeit, von Satz zu Satz einen Instrumentenwechsel zu verlangen (und durch das Erkalten des zweiten Instruments entstünden Intonationsprobleme), stimmt in Mozarts Fall nicht, da er genau den Wechsel von Oboe zu Flöte in zahlreichen Instrumentalwerken⁴⁵ und den von einer Klarinette zur anderen in zahlreichen Opern verlangt.⁴⁶

Die obligate Führung der Violinen ist vom Sanctus der c-Moll-Messe inspiriert. Trotz der berühmten Anekdote über Mozarts Nachahmung eines Paukenwirbels am Sterbebett⁴⁷ wurde Süßmayrs merkwürdige Paukenstimme nicht berücksichtigt. T. 1–5 seiner Chorfassung wurde beibehalten, der auffällige Querstand im Bass (T. 6) und die seltsamen tonalen Widersprüche der Takte 6–10 durch Umarbeitung korrigiert. Jetzt folgt der Chor nach mozartischem Muster konsequent dem Weg zur Tonika.

Die neukomponierte Hosanna-Fuge weist die Proportionen einer mozartischen Kirchenfuge auf (Vorlage: c-Moll-Messe), wobei versucht wurde, die Länge eher zu beschränken, um der hinzugefügten Musik möglichst wenig Gewicht zu verleihen. Der Schlussakkord erklingt mit leerer Quinte (das heißt, ohne Terz) wie auch in anderen von Mozart entworfenen Sätzen (zum Beispiel Kyrie-Fuge und Dies irae). Eine Alternative mit Dur-Terz wird im Hinblick auf Mozarts Praxis in der c-Moll-Messe ebenfalls angeboten.

Benedictus: Der Vokalsatz von T. 3 bis 18 wurde als Kern des umgearbeiteten Satzes beibehalten. Als Ritornell dient nach wie vor der übergangsartige Anfang, doch wurden die Fehler in Süßmayrs Stimmführung durch Umarbeitung beseitigt. Um die Begleitung der Vokalsolisten durchsichtiger zu gestalten, wurde hier mit zwei Violinen und Bass (Viola col Basso) ganz bewusst ein Streichersatz nach Salzburger Muster gewählt. Vor wichtigen Schlüssen wird, wie am Schluss des Rex tremendae, nur a cappella musiziert. Die allzu vage Verwandtschaft der süßmayrschen Binnen- und Schluss-Ritornelle mit der „et lux perpetua“-Stelle aus dem INTROITUS,⁴⁸ hat den Bearbeiter ermutigt, diesen indirekten Hinweis durch ein direktes Zitat zu ersetzen.⁴⁹ Eine viertaktige Phrase mit Vollschluss statt Süßmayrs Halbschluss verschiebt Süßmayrs Chor-Übergang (T. 22–27 seiner Fassung) um einen halben Takt. Dadurch braucht die Neufassung nur einen halbtaktigen Orchesterübergang (anstelle Süßmayrs ganzem Takt), um die Reprise zu erreichen. Diese wird leicht überarbeitet, damit die Modulation nach Es-Dur in einem zusätzlichen Takt dem Verlauf der Exposition entspricht und die melodische Führung der Sopranstimme im folgenden Abschnitt freier wirkt. Ein neukomponierter Übergang, dessen Quellen der INTROITUS (für T. 50–54) und das Kyrie d-Moll KV 341 (für T. 54–56)⁵⁰ bilden, führt zur gekürzten Wiederholung der Hosanna-Fuge in der Originaltonart D-Dur (nicht, wie bei Süßmayr, in B-Dur; vgl. S. XIV). Die Entscheidung, die Reprise der Fuge zu kürzen, hatte drei Gründe:

Erstens schien es hinsichtlich der Harmonik wichtig, auf einen Halbschluss in d-Moll zu zielen (um an die Haupttonart d-Moll zu erinnern, statt von B-Dur direkt nach D-Dur zu gehen). Da die Hosanna-Fuge auf der Tonika beginnt, wäre eine Gesamtwiedergabe dadurch nicht möglich.

Zweitens wird die Hosanna-Fuge der c-Moll-Messe nach dem Benedictus ebenfalls in gekürzter Form wiederholt.

Drittens konnte dadurch nochmals der Anteil neukomponierter Musik begrenzt werden.

AGNUS DEI: Das AGNUS DEI blieb strukturell unangetastet, aus den Abschnitten zwei und drei werden Süßmayrs Mängel beseitigt. Die Anbindung der beiden Abschnitte (Agnus Dei – dona eis Requiem) wurde anders erzielt, und die erste Bassnote von T. 11 wurde von Süßmayrs A in f umgeändert, um das Motiv (vgl. Sopran) organisch zu behalten. Der Verlauf des dritten Abschnittes lehnt sich an Passagen aus dem Recordare und dem *Hostias an.*⁵¹ Einen einfachen Trugschluss auf Ges ersetzt Süßmayrs verminderten Septakkord in T. 45, der zu großen Stimmführungsproblemen führt und eine wenig überzeugende Verbindung zum folgenden Ges-Dur-Dreiklang schafft.⁵² Der Schluss ist wegen einer kompletten Chorimitation um zwei Takte verlängert, Süßmayrs crescendo wurde getilgt, und der vorletzte Takt enthält eine Alternative zu Süßmayrs Sekundakkord auf dem dritten Taktteil.

Lux aeterna – Cum sanctis tuis: In Gegensatz zu allen bisherigen Ausgaben wird dieser letzte Abschnitt des Requiems, die COMMUNIO, zusammen mit dem AGNUS DEI als Einheit aufgefasst, deshalb sind die Takte durchnummeriert. Das Lux aeterna wurde mit Mozarts Autograph des Requiem-Satzes verglichen; in T. 78–79 kehrt die Alternativfassung für Trompeten und Pauken wieder. Die Umtextierung der Cum sanctis tuis-Fuge (vgl. S. XII f.) verursacht kleine rhythmische Änderungen in Chor und Orchester. Der gesamte Notentext wurde ansonsten mit dem der Kyrie-Fuge erneut verglichen.

Zur Ausgabe

Die vorliegende Ergänzung schließt eine neue kritische Ausgabe des Requiems mit ein. Dynamik, Artikulation, Bezifferung und sonstige Bezeichnungen aus Mozarts Eigenschrift bzw. aus Süßmayrs Ergänzung werden durch Ziffern in geradem Satz bzw. in normaler Größe gekennzeichnet. Zutaten des Herausgebers erscheinen kursiv bzw. klein, ergänzte Bezifferungen in eckigen Klammern, Bögen punktiert. In den ergänzten Stimmen bzw. Sätzen sind alle dynamischen Zeichen kursiv gesetzt, dabei wird auf die sonstige optische Kennzeichnung der Zusätze verzichtet.

Bei der Vorbereitung dieser Ergänzung haben viele Kollegen wesentliche Beiträge, Hilfe und Rat geleistet. Ohne die

Anregung und das Vertrauen von Helmuth Rilling hätte ich nie gewagt, das einschüchternde Projekt zu unternehmen. Seine bedingungslose Unterstützung, seine Bereitwilligkeit, eine Stunde vor der Uraufführung noch Korrekturen aufzunehmen, sein totales Engagement bei Aufführung und Erstaufnahme verdienen meinen höchsten Dank. Prof. Dr. Christoph Wolff (Belmont, USA) gewährte mir Zugang zu seinen fortlaufenden Requiem-Forschungen und insbesondere zum Manuskript seiner Requiem-Monographie vor der Drucklegung. Bei vielen stilistischen Fragen erhielt ich von Prof. Dr. Marius Flothuis (Amsterdam) großzügigen, unentbehrlichen Rat. Prof. Dr. Wolfgang Plath (†) half bei schriftkundlichen Fragen in der Durchnummerierung des Original-Manuskriptes. Zu einer Zeit, in der Aufführungen mit historischen Instrumenten einen immer größeren Anteil an unserem Musikleben haben, war es unentbehrlich, die Bläserstimmen bezüglich ihrer Spielbarkeit auf den Instrumenten der Mozartzeit zu überprüfen, wofür ich Lesley Schatzberger (York) und Alastair Mitchell (Lewes/East Sussex) sehr dankbar bin. Hilfreiche Anregungen bekam ich von John Harbison (Cambridge, USA), Daniel N. Leeson (Los Altos, USA) und Stanley Sadie (London). Vor allem möchte ich Prof. Dr. Ulrich Prinz von der Internationalen Bachakademie Stuttgart meinen herzlichsten Dank für seine unermüdliche und unersetzliche Mitarbeit bei der Vorbereitung der Partitur und Stimmen für Uraufführung, Aufnahme und Drucklegung, sowie bei der Redaktion der deutschen Fassung des Vorworts aussprechen. Ohne seine Anregungen und seine Mitwirkung wäre das Projekt nie zustande gekommen.

Mag die neue Fassung dem Geist Mozarts dienen und dabei ermöglichen, dass Mozarts großartiger Requiem-Torso im Rahmen seiner Tradition stilecht erklingt.

Foreword

I. Origin and Sources of the Work

Mozart's Requiem – the composer's last and unfinished work – was commissioned by Count Franz von Wallsegg, who wished to have it performed in memory of his departed wife as his own composition.¹ In order to follow the conditions set by the Count and to receive the agreed-upon fee, Mozart's widow Constanze decided to have the work completed in secrecy. The Requiem is known to the general public in the version undertaken immediately after Mozart's death by his assistant Franz Xaver Süssmayr. The work in its traditional form, as completed by Süssmayr, consists of 14 sections (see page III).

The Requiem is based on the following sources:

1. Mozart's manuscript of the following movements:

[1] (Requiem aeternam) – virtually complete;
[2] (Kyrie fugue) – the complete draft of the choral parts and the orchestral bass line;
[3]–[10] – the choral/vocal parts and the orchestral bass line as in [2], with occasional motives for the orchestral accompaniment. [8] (Lacrimosa) breaks off after the eighth bar.

2. An orchestration of the Kyrie fugue, carried out and entered into Mozart's manuscript by his pupils Franz Jakob Freystädler (winds and strings) and Süssmayr (trumpets and timpani). This was probably prepared for Mozart's funeral on 10 December 1791, thus only five days after the composer's death.

3. A partial completion of the SEQUENCE by Joseph Eybler, likewise entered into Mozart's manuscript:

[3] (Dies irae) and [7] (Confutatis) – complete;
[4]–[6] – string parts only;
[8] – two measures of the soprano part as a continuation of the Lacrimosa.

4. Süssmayr's completion of the Requiem:

[2] in his and Freystädler's orchestration;
[3]–[10] fully instrumented, in a version that takes Eybler's work into account;
[11]–[14] in settings that survive only in his hand. However, the last movement (Lux aeterna – Cum sanctis tuis) is merely a newly texted version of part of the Requiem aeternam and of the Kyrie fugue.²

5. A version of the OFFERTORY by Abbé Maximilian Stadler, which apparently postdates Süssmayr's version.³

6. A sketch leaf, which contains inter alia contrapuntal studies for the Rex tremendae as well as the beginning of an Amen fugue for the close of the Lacrimosa (i. e., of the SEQUENCE), which Süssmayr did not include in his version. The assumption that the fugue was intended for this use is supported by the following facts:

In addition to sketches to the Rex tremendae, the beginning of the Amen fugue and a hitherto unidentified piece, the sketch leaf contains a sketch to the opera Die Zauberflöte. This provides a solid dating of autumn 1791 for the sketch leaf. Because Mozart is not known to have worked on any other church work at this time, a connection with the Requiem would be probable in any case. This presumption is confirmed by the Amen fugue's use of the Requiem's principal key (D minor) and, in particular, of one of its themes (cf. p. XVIIff.). The exact placement of the fugue within the Requiem is unequivocal: the word "Amen" occurs a single time – at the end of the Lacrimosa. Such an Amen fugue reflects the practice of 18th century Requiem settings (Bonno, Michael Haydn, Jomelli, Gassmann, etc.) and would have created an overall structure in which a fugue ends each major section (INTROITUS – Kyrie fugue; SEQUENCE – Amen fugue; OFFERTORY – Quam olim Abrahae fugue; SANCTUS-Benedictus – *Hosanna*⁴ fugue; AGNUS DEI-COMMUNION – Cum sanctis tuis fugue).⁵

Because Eybler's completion of the SEQUENCE ([3]–[8]) was entered into Mozart's manuscript, Süssmayr had to copy out Mozart's fragment from the SEQUENCE onwards as part of his own completion. The completed version of the Requiem consisted of Mozart's autograph of the Requiem aeternam and Kyrie (the latter with Freystädler's and Süssmayr's orchestration) and Süssmayr's manuscript of the rest. Bearing a forged signature "di me W. A. Mozart

¹ For a detailed description of the origin and sources of the Requiem cf. Leopold Nowak's introductions to the two volumes of the Neue Mozart-Ausgabe containing the Requiem, which he prepared: Series I/1, Part 2, sub-volume 1, pp. VII–XVI and Series I/1, Part 2, sub-volume 2, pp. VII–XXI; Christoph Wolff, Mozart's Requiem: Historical and Analytical Studies, Documents, and Score of the Fragment, Berkeley, 1994; and Paul Moseley, "Mozart's Requiem: A Reevaluation of the Evidence," Journal of the Royal Musical Association 114 (1989), pp. 203–237. The page references from Wolff's monograph are refer to the German edition (Munich/Kassel, etc., 1991, cf. n. 1 in the German Foreword). Concerning the spelling "Wallsegg" cf. Walther Brauneis, "Dies irae, Dies illa – Tag des Zornes, Tag der Klage." Auftrag, Entstehung und Vollendung von Mozarts "Requiem.", in: Jahrbuch des Vereins für Geschichte der Stadt Wien 47/48 (1991/1992), p. 33.

² The sequence of movements in Süssmayr's completion (settings of the SANCTUS ff. but not of the GRADUAL Requiem aeternam, of the TRACT Absolve, Domine or of the RESPONSORY Libera me with its ANTIPHON In paradisum) reflects the common practice observed in Salzburg and Vienna at that time; cf. Nowak, op. cit., sub-volume 1, p. VI–II; Wolff, op. cit., pp. 68–74. It is plausible that Süssmayr received direct instructions concerning this matter from Mozart.

³ The chronological relationship between Stadler's and Süssmayr's versions remains disputed. Stadler did not move to Vienna until 1796 but was acquainted with Mozart in his Vienna years. In spite of his appointment in January 1791 as councillor of the consistory in Linz, he often had occasion to journey to Vienna. Thus, he certainly could have belonged to the circle of those who endeavored to complete the Requiem. Cf. Nowak, op. cit., Teilband 2, p. IX and Wolff, op. cit., pp. 29, 30–31. However, Stadler's version is demonstrably not based upon Mozart's autograph, so that a later dating (1800 or subsequently) is more likely. Cf. Moseley, op. cit., pp. 213, 222–223, 236–237.

⁴ Mozart consistently uses the spelling Hosanna, which has been used in the Foreword and in the completion.

mpr 1792" in Süßmayr's hand on the first page of the score, it was sent to the Count after Constanze had it copied, in violation of the terms of the contract.⁶

II. Questions of Authorship

A description of the sources does not answer the fundamental question as to whether any – and if so, how many – sections of the Requiem that are not in Mozart's hand were based on his ideas. Both Constanze and Süßmayr claimed that these movements were completely Süßmayr's work. Nonetheless, this claim has been contested. Over the years some specialists have insisted that some of this music is of a quality that Süßmayr could not have produced unaided.⁷

The attacks against Süßmayr's completion began in 1825, when the so-called "Requiem Controversy" erupted.⁸ Indeed, Süßmayr commits serious flaws which are foreign to Mozart's idiom. These errors, which incidentally are also to be found in Süßmayr's completion of the second movement of Mozart's Horn Concerto in D major, K. 412 (likewise composed in 1791, the year of his death), encompass grammatical and compositional issues, e. g., glaring parallel fifths in the orchestral accompaniment of the Sanctus (m. 4, Violin I/Soprano), the Hosanna fugue's clumsy voice leading and insufficient length,⁹ and the reprise of the fugue after the Benedictus, not in the original key of D major, but in B-flat major, which conflicts with normal 18th century church music practice.¹⁰ Such obvious flaws, which characterize Süßmayr's entire completion, might easily prompt the conclusion that the Sanctus/Hosanna, Benedictus and Agnus Dei are the exclusive product of Süßmayr's pen. This hypothesis, widely accepted in the scholarly community, is nonetheless challenged by revealing details in the traditional completion.

Süßmayr's own works allow us to compare his compositional procedures with those of the Requiem completion.¹¹ From this comparison it emerges that Süßmayr normally composed movement by movement without regard for overall thematic integrity in a multi-movement work. In this regard he resembles the majority of his contemporaries, who seem to have favored apparent thematic variety to rigorous thematic economy, even within movements.¹² On the other hand, Mozart's Requiem fragment is characterized by tight motivic and structural relationships:¹³

A) The theme of the INTROITUS (Bassoon I, m. 1; choir bass, m. 8) reappears in the following movements:

INTROITUS: same movement, alto, in melodic inversion, as countersubject in diminution:

Re-qui-em a - ter - nam,
Do - na, do -

Kyrie fugue: indirect (decorated) quotation in the subject (mm. 49ff.); melodic inversion within the countersubject, in diminution:

Ky - ri - e e - le - i - son, e - le -
Chri - ste e - le -

Dies irae: orchestral bass, mm. 1–5; soprano, mm. 4–6:

slo - vet sae - clum in fa - vil - la:

Tuba mirum: trombone, m. 8, in melodic inversion:

Sketch to the Amen fugue to end the SEQUENCE (i. e., the Lacrimosa): the theme, in melodic inversion in augmentation; soprano, mm. 6–7, twice in diminution:

A - - - - - men
a - men, a - - - - - men,

Domine Jesu: Choir or orchestral bass, mm. 8–9 and mm 10–11:

de poe - nis in - fer - ni, de poe - nis in - fer - ni

¹³ The following list is meant to be representative, not exhaustive.

B) The orchestral bass of the INTROITUS (mm. 1–2) reappears in the Lacrimosa (mm. 1–2):

C) The end of the first phrase of the Dies irae recurs in the following movements:

Tuba mirum (mm. 24 ff.),

and at the end of the Rex tremendae:

This quotation could also be understood as a cancrizans version of the INTROITUS theme:

in the Domine Jesu,

and at the beginning of the Hostias (expanded).

D) The trombone theme of the Tuba mirum is sung not only by the solo bass, but also, in F minor, by the solo tenor:

This theme then recurs in the following movements:

in the Confutatis,

in the Lacrimosa, slightly modified.

E) The great descending scale at the outset of the Rex tremendae returns in the Confutatis (mm. 3f.):

The ascending scale in the Lacrimosa could be understood as a melodic inversion of this passage:

F) The theme of the Recordare is reused for the Quam olim Abrahae fugue:

G) The Passage “Ingemisco, tamquam reus” from the Recordare recurs in the Hostias:

H) Apart from the borrowing of the Confutatis theme from the Tuba mirum, the accompanimental figure in the violins for the phrase “Voca me” is derived from the Recordare (note the textual relationship); the vocal phrase (see m.17ff.) is in any case related to the INTROITUS theme:

Given the lack of such thematic relationships in Süssmayr's own works, we would scarcely expect them to appear in his completion of the Requiem. However, a great surprise awaits those who hold this view:

– The Sanctus theme is derived from the Dies irae:

Di - es i - rae, di - es il - la, sol - vet
sae - clum in fa - vil - la: te - ste Da - vid cum Si - byl - la.

San - ctus, San - ctus, San - ctus,
Do - mi - nus De - us Sa - ba - oth.

– The Hosanna fugue subject has two motives. The first of these is derived from the Recordare/Quam olim Abrahae theme, the second from the melodic inversion of the INTROITUS theme (or the diminution of the Amen fugue):

O - san - na in - ex - cel - sis,

– The orchestral bass line of the Agnus Dei quotes the INTROITUS theme, whereas the violin accompaniment contains a cancrizans diminution of the same theme:

A - gnus De - i, qui tol - lis

The soprano line is directly related to the already cited “Ingemisco, tamquam reus” passage from the Recordare:

In - ge - mi - sco A - gnus De - i,

How is it possible that this indisputable motivic consistency can be observed only in a single work of Süssmayr? Moreover, within the parts attributed to Süssmayr there are unmistakable discrepancies between idiomatically Mozartean lines and incorrect voice leadings.

A) In the Sanctus, the first five measures of the chorus are harmonically beyond reproach; in the successive sixth chords (m. 4) the distribution of the three-part parallel voice leading among all four voices (instead of the normal voice leading, with three parallel voices and one free line) is striking – particularly in the light of the noted parallel fifths in the orchestral accompaniment:

* doubled leading tone

After this passage there is a conspicuous cross-relation in the bass (C-natural against the C-sharp of the previous measure); then the harmonies move without apparent goal first to E minor, then A major (half-cadence in D major) and B minor before the final return to D major for the fugue. Not one SANCTUS movement by Mozart contains such harmonic opacity; in his music the harmony unfolds consistently in linear fashion.

B) The Hosanna fugue shows unequivocally that Süssmayr did not possess the ability to write a proper fugue: Within the exposition, right after the sounding of the motivically organic theme, there are vertical six-four chords, unaccepted in common practice (mm. 20, 22), and a doubled tritone (m. 19). As soon as the exposition is over, Süssmayr hurries to the close after only 28 measures. Such a construction is foreign not only to Mozart, but to any competent composer.

C) The Benedictus displays a series of remarkable characteristics:

– The theme, as has long been noticed,¹⁴ is also to be found in Barbara Ployer's book of composition lessons with Mozart.¹⁵ However, as we shall see immediately, this relationship extends beyond a mere thematic citation.

– The harmonization of the first measure deserves far more attention than it has heretofore received. If one were given this melody to harmonize, one would assume the first note to be the fifth of the tonic triad. Because it would make little sense to begin with an inversion, it would seem obvious to begin with the tonic in the bass on the first beat. That is in fact what Barbara Ployer's first version does. The Benedictus, however, presents a version that is different in two significant ways:

a) The melody begins alone; the accompaniment has a rest. This characteristic constitutes a further important connection between the Benedictus and Mozart's (not Ployer's) revision of the bass line in the composition book. Such a rest, above all at the beginning of a movement, is anything but obvious.

b) More astonishing than the rhythmic similarity with Mozart's harmonization in the Ployer composition book is the harmonic content of the first half-measure. After the eighth-rest we do not hear a B-flat major triad in the accompaniment, but the minor third d^1-f^1 . To be sure, this sound could be understood as part of a B-flat major chord – but not unequivocally so. Could it not be understood equally ¹⁴ Cf. Robert Lach, Mozart als Theoretiker (Kaiserliche Akademie der Wissenschaften in Wien, Denkschriften Band 61, 1. Abhandlung), Vienna, 1918, p. 7.

¹⁵ Cf. NMA X/30/2, pp. 2/3, 8/9.

well as the tonic of D minor? Thus we can perceive an audacious compositional gamble. The previous movement ended in D major. Were the Benedictus to begin with *f*¹ in the melody and B-flat in the bass after the D major tonic chord, the public would be confronted with a coarse tonal shift. This crudeness is skillfully avoided in Süssmayr's version. First one thinks the piece is in D minor. Only after the two accompanimental voices descend to a and *e-flat*¹ does the listener grasp that we are moving towards B-flat-major. The opening of the movement thereby has the character of a tonal transition, similar to those encountered in the late Beethoven string quartets.¹⁶

The vocal part-writing in the exposition is in all respects virtually error-free; later, however, there are parallel fifths between alto and tenor (mm. 26–27), and the recapitulation betrays unequivocal melodic stagnation (mm. 34–38). The shortcomings of the orchestral introduction are ubiquitous:¹⁷

m. 1: the 16th-note repetition of the *b-flat*¹ in the Violin I; m. 2: the parallel octaves in Violin I/Basset Horn I and Viola between the first two eighth-notes of the bar (the 16th-note chord-tone decoration in the upper voice does not mitigate this flaw);

mm. 2–3: the parallel fourths between the outer voices, with the resulting unprepared dissonance at the beginning of m. 3;

m. 3: the attempt to disguise the parallel fifths between Violin I/Basset Horn I and Viola/Bassoon I through the anticipation of the e-flat; (This anticipation is later omitted; cf., e. g., m. 6.)¹⁸

m. 3: the consecutive fifths between Violin II and Basso; the presence of the trombones in a nonsoloistic capacity in a nonchoral movement.

– The ritornellos in the middle of the movement, in the dominant (mm. 18–22) and at the end, in the tonic (mm. 50–54), refer indirectly to the passage “et lux perpetua” from the INTROITUS; but the simplification has a flat crudeness about it. The half-cadence in m. 22 interrupts the forward motion, and the measure-long transition (m. 27) seems too long and stylistically foreign.

These findings give credence to the theory that the “few scraps of music” (Constanze Mozart) which Süssmayr was given by Constanze together with Mozart's manuscript contained material not found in Mozart's draft. That such “scraps” existed can no longer be doubted since Wolfgang Plath's discovery of the sketch leaf mentioned above. We also know that Constanze and Nissen destroyed many Mozart sketches in 1799.¹⁹ Whether these included Requiem sketches can no longer be ascertained. It is also quite possible that Mozart suggested certain ideas to Süssmayr at the keyboard. While such hypotheses are in the realm of speculation, it is to be stressed that the state of affairs described above cannot be reconciled with Süssmayr's exclusive authorship.

III. The Recent Completions

Over the last decade a number of musicians have attempted to cleanse the Requiem of the deficiencies introduced by Süssmayr. These new versions have been performed, recorded and published, thereby allowing direct insight into the nature of the problems at hand.

The scope of these revisions varies considerably. Franz Beyer has provided a revised instrumentation: with few exceptions his alterations affect only the orchestral music. In his version, the work definitely sounds more transparent and more convincing than in Süssmayr's. However, the errors and stylistic discrepancies in the choral/vocal parts and the overall structure are left intact. Moreover, he did not take the sketch of the Amen fugue into consideration. H. C. Robbins Landon's edition is a conflation of Eybler and Süssmayr, replacing the latter with the former wherever possible; the only new material is that necessitated by stitching the two versions together. In Richard Maunder's edition, there are new versions of the Lacrimosa and the Agnus Dei, but the Sanctus/Hosanna and the Benedictus have been omitted because Maunder is convinced they have nothing whatsoever to do with Mozart.²⁰ He has completed the Amen fugue, but his version contains modulations. 18th century Amen fugues remain in the same key, thereby providing a stable conclusion not just to the movement (Lacrimosa), but to the entire section (the SEQUENCE). A more radical revision has been attempted by Duncan Druce: in addition to a substantial Amen fugue the Lacrimosa, Sanctus/Hosanna, Benedictus, Agnus Dei and even the Lux aeterna have been subjected to ambitious recomposition.²¹

IV. The Present Completion

General Remarks

The completion published here seeks to respect both of the tendencies of the newer versions. On the one hand the compositional problems of the Lacrimosa, the Amen fugue, and the movements surviving only in Süssmayr's hand have not been overlooked out of blind piety to their 200-year-old origin. On the other hand, the historical and performance tradition of the Requiem demands respect. A clearly drawn line of separation, in which everything except the contents of Mozart's autograph draft was to be considered spurious per se, was explicitly rejected. Quite the contrary: the goal was to revise not as much, but as little as possible, attempting in the revisions to observe the character, texture, voice leading, continuity and structure of Mozart's music. The traditional version has been retained insofar as it agrees with idiomatic Mozartean practice. In the interest of scrupulousness the preparation of the completion involved only the following materials:

²⁰ Süssmayr's Sanctus/Osanna and Benedictus are reproduced in an appendix. Having selected Maunder's edition as a cleansing of Süssmayr, however, it hardly seems sensible to perform the movements Maunder has utterly condemned as part of his version.

- Mozart's fragment (INTROITUS-SEQUENCE-OFFERTORY);
- The choral/vocal parts and orchestral bass to Süssmayr's versions of the Lacrimosa, Sanctus/Hosanna, Benedictus, AGNUS DEI, and the entire score of the COMMUNION. However, these were merely the basis of the new version, given the compositional and stylistic problems they contain.

Through the use of this working method it was possible to proceed without the influence of the historical orchestrations of Eybler and Süssmayr (to say nothing of the recent completions). That certain similarities with the newer versions nevertheless occur shows that objective stylistic analysis can lead on occasion to similar results.

The New Organization of the Work

Leopold Nowak's edition of the Requiem for the NMA²² presents the work in the following framework:

- I. INTROITUS
Requiem
- II. KYRIE
- III. SEQUENZ
No. 1 Dies irae
No. 2 Tuba mirum
No. 3 Rex tremendae
No. 4 Recordare
No. 5 Confutatis
No. 6 Lacrimosa
- IV. OFFERTORIUM
No. 1 Domine Jesu
No. 2 Hostias
- V. SANCTUS
- VI. Benedictus
- VII. AGNUS DEI
- VIII. COMMUNIO
Lux aeterna

This grouping – indeed Nowak's edition – has been used by Beyer.²³ Unfortunately it does not quite correspond to Mozart's own organization, in which the INTROITUS (Requiem) and the Kyrie fugue are notated as two parts of a single movement (just as Süssmayr links the Lux aeterna and the Cum sanctis tuis fugue in the COMMUNION – which Nowak respects in his edition).²⁴ In addition, the Sanctus and the Benedictus form a unit through the return of the Hosanna fugue, just like the Domine Jesu and Hostias. The resultant grouping, which has rightly been suggested by Christoph Wolff,²⁵ is as follows:

- [1. INTROITUS]
Requiem
KYRIE
- [2. SEQUENZ]
Dies irae
Tuba mirum

The foregoing grouping corresponds to Mozart's titles; everything in brackets has the purpose of providing a liturgical overview. From this scheme a fundamental organizational principle becomes clear: each section ends with a fugue (Kyrie, Amen, Quam olim Abrahae, Hosanna, Cum sanctis tuis). The linking of AGNUS DEI with the COMMUNION is due to the musical connection of Süssmayr's setting, which has been retained in the new version. The single practical consequence of the reorganization is that the measures are numbered from the INTROITUS through the Kyrie and from the AGNUS DEI through the COMMUNION.

The Instrumentation

Of the 14 movements/sections of the Requiem we possess one more or less finished movement – the Requiem aeternam,²⁶ complete drafts of eight more, and a partial draft and a sketch for two more. Süssmayr's stylistically idiomatic reuse of part of the first movement for the Lux aeterna and of the Kyrie for the Cum sanctis tuis results in the following synopsis of movements:

- Finished by Mozart:
1½ (Requiem/Lux aeterna)
- Drafted (orchestration to be supplied):
8½ (incl. Cum sanctis tuis)
- Begun or sketched:
2 (Lacrimosa, Amen)
- Surviving only in Süssmayr's hand: 3

²² Cf. n. 1.

²³ Maunder's edition lacks an organizational grouping.

²⁴ Süssmayr also notates AGNUS DEI and COMMUNION as a continuous movement; see below.

²⁵ Op. Cit., pp. 67–75.

²⁶ Wolff has correctly observed that Süssmayr's letter to Breitkopf & Härtel of 8 February 1800 characterizes not just the SEQUENCE and OFFERTORY of Mozart's draft score but the Kyrie and even the Requiem (INTROITUS) as unfinished: op. cit., p. 27. He thereby raises for the first time the question of whether the INTROITUS required completion; cf. below.

As critical as the challenge of the movements requiring completion may be, the rescoring of the 8½ movements presents the greatest task of a new version. Süßmayr's violations of Mozart's style are manifest not only in the already cited grammatical errors, but also through the use of an overly thick orchestral texture. This weakens the ability of the choir and solo voices to function as the expressive focus of the work. It has been claimed that the key to Mozart's presumed orchestration of the Requiem is to be sought in the operas Die Zauberflöte and La Clemenza di Tito (It is true that Die Zauberflöte is the only other work by Mozart that contains the combination of basset horns, bassoons and trombones.). The similarities between Mozart's instrumental concertos and operas is beyond dispute. However, the rhetoric and expression of Mozart's sacred music is of a completely different essence. The character of a Mozartean work depends equally upon aspects of melody, harmony, phraseology, the relationship between any soloists (instrumental or vocal; or a chorus) and the orchestra, timbral elements (larger vs. smaller orchestra, sobriety vs. color), texture (massive, transparent), and the stylistic element (which is often has an archaic effect in his church music). For the new completion Mozart's late orchestral style was indeed analyzed, but the sound of a church work – and particularly a mass for the dead – could not be taken from a comic German opera (even given its serious sections) or from an opera seria.²⁷

Mozart's prescribed scoring for the Requiem dictates a priori a relatively stark timbral range. Flutes, oboes and horns are excluded. Occasionally one encounters the opinion that Mozart perhaps would have changed the scoring in the course of the work, but this argument is unpersuasive. His church music does not deviate from the initial scoring, if one recalls the standard doublings of the time between flute and oboe or between clarinet and basset horn.²⁸ In any case a rather transparent accompaniment would be desirable if only so that the portion of the work written by Mozart carry the main expressive weight.

The first priority, then, was a more transparent instrumentation, derived in the first instance from Mozart's other church music. The choir is placed in the foreground through the use of a two-part string texture (unison violins vis-à-vis unison viola and bass), or a three-part texture with independent parts for the two violins and viola/bass in unison, which in Salzburg was necessary because violas were not used in the church orchestra. Thus the six-part triple canon in the Rex tremendae (Violin I/II – Viola, Basso; Alto – Soprano; Tenor – Bass) may be heard uncluttered by the heavy voice leading in parallel thirds (Violin I – II, Viola – Basso), which Süßmayr appropriated from Eybler. In addition, the orchestra has been given rests at important cadential phrases, in order to confirm the preeminent role of the choir (or solo singers).

The instrumental doublings in the Kyrie fugue carried out by Freystädtler correspond to Mozart's practice in the choral fugues of the C-minor mass, K. 427 (Cum Sancto Spiritu, Hosanna) and were retained (cf. below):

Soprano = Basset Horn I, Violin I
 Alto = Basset Horn II, Alto Trombone, Violin II
 Tenor = Bassoon I, Tenor Trombone, Viola
 Bass = Bassoon II, Bass Trombone, Cello/Basso/Organ

This practice was also used for the Amen and Hosanna fugues. The prescribed first violin obbligato in the Quam olim Abrahæ fugue requires a different solution; see below.

The Trombones

The participation of the trombones as reinforcement of the choir was a given in Mozart's Salzburg church music. The surviving trombone parts from the C-minor mass (among other works) show that the trombones were not meant to play literally colla parte the whole time. Unfortunately, with few exceptions, Mozart did not write separate trombone parts into the scores of his church works; rather, he notated sparse indications for the trombones in the choral staves. From the shades of ink and the placement of these indications it is to be presumed that this labor was part of the final phase of the composition's notation.²⁹ Because Mozart never reached that point in the composition of the Requiem, there is but a single passage – mm. 7–8 of the INTROITUS – where the trombones' participation is prescribed. Mozart's other church works allow us to glean certain criteria, which, if not binding, may at least be helpful. The omission of the trombones at the end of the INTROITUS, for example, or at the end of the Confutatis, reflects Mozartean practice.³⁰ Another authentic practice involves rhythmic simplification where the text setting causes pitch repetitions in the chorus.³¹ Reference is hereby made to the following decisions:

Rex tremendæ: The soloistic entry of the trombones immediately before the entrance of the choir in the INTROITUS seems to have a counterpart in the Rex tremendæ (mm. 2–3). However, this analogy need not be binding; in a favorable acoustical situation the sonority of the winds might suffice. In any case the premature entrance of the trombones in the first measure of Süßmayr's completion is rather a pity: it destroys the surprise of the choral entrance two measures later. In mm. 6–7 Süßmayr notates independent trombone parts in quarter notes, whereby the bass trombone plays an octave below the bass voice. This read-

²⁷ The chorus "O Isis und Osiris" would be a more compelling precedent for the Requiem were it to contain strings. Given the statistical evidence provided by the large corpus of Mozart's church works, it is most unlikely for him to have scored a movement of the Requiem for winds without strings; and no completion has proposed such a solution, even for more than a few bars. A more important basis for comparison might be the Kyrie in D minor, K. 341, which shares with the Requiem its key and approximate date of composition (according to recent redating). However, its scoring (pairs of flutes, oboes, clarinets and bassoons with four horns, trumpets and timpani) is far larger than that of the Requiem; cf. immediately below.

²⁹ Regarding this state of affairs in the C-minor mass cf. NMA I/1, Part 1, vol. 5, foreword (Monika Holl/Karlheinz Köhler), p. XVII

³⁰ Cf. C-minor mass, Kyrie, m. 27; Cum Sancto Spiritu, mm. 53ff. and 73ff.

³¹ Cf. the Qui tollis of the C-minor mass.

ing, first rendered in Nowak's NMA edition, was nonetheless not taken into account, because the rhythm of the choir dictated by the text struck the author of the completion as dramatically binding.

Confutatis: Beyer's suggestion that the tenor voice be doubled by tenor and alto trombone, with both bassoons and the bass trombone as counterweight, also occurred to the author. In the end the more conventional solution (one bassoon + one trombone per choral voice) was chosen.

Domine Jesu: The voices were occasionally simplified rhythmically (cf. mm. 3, 21–28, 71–74).

Hostias: Cf. the problem of dynamics discussed below. As long as the primary dynamic was piano, Süssmayr's decision to omit trombones from this movement was plausible. With the restoration of a forte dynamic, on the other hand, the situation is no longer unequivocal. Because a colla-parte voice leading for the trombones in all forte passages is scarcely unthinkable, they appear ad libitum in the new version.

Benedictus: Süssmayr's use of obbligato trombones (and trumpets) has not been retained.

The Organ Part

Mozart's score prescribes the participation of the organ – in any case obvious in church music. However, there are several aspects of the organ part that have not been transmitted consistently.

1. Solo/Tutti. As in his Salzburg church music, Mozart differentiates in the Requiem score between Solo and Tutti. These indications refer to the local practice of using a "solo organ" for orchestral and vocal solo passages and a "tutti organ" for choral passages.³² As thoroughgoing as these indications are in the Requiem score, they are nonetheless not entirely complete, and they are missing in the movements completed by Süssmayr (Lacrimosa, Sanctus/Hosanna, Benedictus, Agnus Dei). In the present new version they have been consistently carried out for the first time.

2. Figuration and Participation in Individual Movements. Mozart provided substantial figuration of the organ part in his draft. However, figuration is missing for part or all of the following movements:

Tuba mirum

Rex tremendae (except for m. 2)

Recordare

Confutatis (before m. 26)

Lacrimosa (for the 8-measure draft)

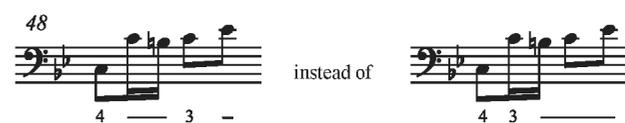

Domine Jesu (except mm. 21–28)

Hostias

Mozart's autograph scoring for the Tuba mirum omits the organ. He prescribes organ for the Recordare, however. Nonetheless all surviving sources as well as recent editions omit figuration; it has therefore been omitted in the present completion. The separate organ part contains a realization for the movement.

The missing figuration in the remaining movements has been adopted from Süssmayr when it does not conflict with the new version. However, Süssmayr himself left the Rex tremendae, the end of the Domine Jesu and the entire Hostias unfigured. For these movements the new version, like the previous editions, falls back upon the first edition of the parts (1812).

For the pedal on the dominant in the Quam olim Abrahae fugue (mm. 61–64 and, after the Hostias, mm. 72–75) Süssmayr's figuration was replaced by the indication "tasto solo" in keeping with customary stylistic practice; in the same fugue the premature resolutions of the suspensions (coinciding with the 16th-note anticipations of the choral parts) called for by his figuration were corrected to

For the newly completed and substantially reworked movements (Amen fugue, Sanctus/Hosanna, Benedictus) the figuration obviously had to be supplied anew.

In contrast with Nowak's edition for the NMA, no attempt was made to standardize Mozart's figuration. As a general rule Mozart seldom uses δ or 4+ with a slash through it to indicate the leading tone or a tritone; instead he uses an accidental, notated before (not after) the figure. For a third above the bass he mostly notates the figure 3 as well, but not always.³³ These habits seem sufficiently interesting and valuable to justify their preservation. It could be that some of these distinctions reflect refined harmonic concepts that have become unclear with the passage of time. Their retention will not cause the slightest problem to an experienced organist; in addition there is the printed realization, which should be considered a fallback position.

The Tempo Markings

Mozart's fragment and Süssmayr's completion have come down to us with incomplete tempo indications. Here is an overview:

³³ Concerning these details cf. the facsimile editions.

Süssmayr's indications are idiomatic and have been retained. New tempo indications for the remaining movements have not been supplied. The rhythmic motion of those movements gives a clear sense of an appropriate tempo. Experience has taught that interpretative matters should be left to performers rather than being imposed by the composer of a completion.

The Dynamics

Süssmayr's completion makes use of certain dynamics which are foreign to Mozart. The dynamic fortissimo, which Mozart uses very seldom, appears in the completion to the Rex tremendae (where it does not appear in Mozart's draft), and in the Benedictus and Agnus Dei. The marking fz (not sf, used by Mozart) is encountered, for instance in the Benedictus. In the movements drafted by Mozart Süssmayr's dynamic revisions have been eliminated. There are two additional problems regarding the dynamics:

Hostias: In the usual interpretation of this movement mm. 1–22 are performed piano; only at m. 23 is a forte heard. However, Mozart's draft contains no dynamic at the beginning of the movement, and no forte in m. 23: his first dynamic is a piano in m. 24. Given contemporary practice, m. 1 would be understood to be forte, which would remain in force until counteracted by the piano on the third beat of m. 24; then the dynamics proceed as notated by Mozart. With this interpretation (forte, mm. 1–24, piano on the third beat of m. 24) Mozart's dynamic indications would be complete, and the small orchestral ritornellos (mm. 1–2, 21–22 and 44–45) would have a consistent dynamic of forte, as opposed to current practice (piano for mm. 1–2 and 21–22, forte for mm. 44–45). It is quite improbable that Mozart forgot the piano at the beginning and the forte in m. 23; this would have to have happened in order for the current interpretation to be justifiable. When the movement begins forte, a dramatic contrast results with the end of the movement, where the primary material appears in piano for the first time.

Agnus Dei: Süssmayr's version prescribes an alternation in the orchestra between forte or mf on the first beat and piano on the second beat of the measure, whereas the choir sings forte. Beyer replaces these dynamics with piano and lets choir and orchestra make a crescendo to the end of the phrase. This solution has a great deal to offer. The present completion follows the traditional reading (with fp instead of mf p in order to effect a proper balance between choir and orchestra), but it would be unproblematic to substitute Beyer's suggestion. In the third phrase (mm. 34–41), the new version introduces a change of register in the chorus (cf. below), derived from the Recordare and Hostias. The dynamic contrast found in the passage from the Hostias was retained, producing a dynamic scheme of forte in mm. 34–36, piano in m. 36, and a crescendo to mf (though f is not inconceivable) from mm. 38–40. In deference to the overall construction of the movement Süssmayr's final crescendo was not retained.

Articulation

The temptation to provide the entire score with detailed articulation in concordance with Mozart's general practice has been resisted. A rigorously unified articulation between chorus and trombones on the one hand, and the rest of the orchestra, on the other hand, has not been carried out. This reflects Mozartean practice. With few exceptions in the early Salzburg masses, accent strokes (wedges/daggers) are relatively infrequent in the choral parts, trombones and timpani. A consistent standardization on the basis of parallel passages was also resisted; only in relatively unambiguous cases was this done. Süssmayr's accent strokes for the theme of the Hosanna fugue were retained, as were such strokes together with slurs from m. 117 of the Cum sanctis tuis fugue onwards – altered, however, due to the new text setting (see below).

The Text

The Latin text appears in modern spelling (e.g., Lacrimosa instead of Lacrymosa). The tri- and quadrisyllabic setting of "e-le-i-son" in the Kyrie fugue has been preserved. In the Cum sanctis tuis fugue a consistent textual alteration has been carried out, because Süssmayr's version does not let the phrase "quia pius es" appear until the last three measures. This treatment conflicts with the general church music practice of the 18th century, in which, apart from immediate repetitions of individual words, the entire phrase ("Cum sanctis tuis in aeternum quia pius es") should be set before the beginning of the phrase repeats.³⁴ Süssmayr himself sets the entire sentence together in the Lux aeterna (mm. 59–61, 61–67 of the present version).

Concerning the Individual Movements

Requiem-Kyrie: For years Mozart experts claimed that Mozart had completely scored the INTROITUS and the Kyrie – including Nowak in the NMA. After Franz Beyer called attention to the repeated transpositional errors in the basset horn parts of the Kyrie fugue, Nowak changed his opinion: the winds, violins and viola were notated by Freystädler, the trumpet and timpani parts by Süssmayr.³⁵ In his monograph, Wolff refers to the possibility that parts of the orchestration of the INTROITUS also might be by Süssmayr.³⁶ The various shades of ink point to Mozart's typical multi-layered notation process; nonetheless it might be that the trumpet and timpani parts towards the end of the movement might have been notated by Süssmayr.³⁷ With all caution an alternative version for those instruments has been offered for mm. 43–44 and at the parallel passage in the Lux aeterna; the main text concurs with the traditional reading.

In the Kyrie fugue the basset horns have been rewritten where the soprano exceeds the upper limits of the instrument, whose registration Mozart would have observed (notated d^3 , sounding g^2); the same solution has been employed in the Cum sanctis tuis fugue. Occasionally the pitch repetitions in the chorus necessitated by the text have been replaced by longer values, in accordance with stylistic custom. At the end of the movement small rhythmic inconsistencies in the string parts have been eliminated.

Dies irae: The string writing has often been reduced to two parts, to clarify the texture. A literal doubling of the chorus by the winds was rejected, in order to give these instruments more independence. In mm. 29–30 the trombones were given an independent passage to underscore the musical continuity. The intentional dissonances between trumpets-timpani and the appoggiatura g sharp in the choral bass voice (mm. 40–41, 44–45, 48–49) were used in reference to the text, “Quantus tremor est futurus.”

Tuba mirum: The prolongation of the solo trombone, as carried out by Süssmayr, was deleted. The very sparing treatment of the winds until the passage for solo vocal quartet was undertaken as a reflection of the treatment of the voices.

Rex tremendae: Concerning the trombones cf. above. The simplification of the string writing in mm. 7–15 has already been discussed; likewise the justification for the a cappella treatment of the chorus at the end of the movement. A doubling of that passage in pulsating eighth-notes – in order to connect with the coda measure which Mozart notated in the first violin – might have been more consistent; nonetheless (in the opinion of the author) it would be expressively weaker.

Recordare: In contrast with all previous completions of this movement, the new version leaves as much of the vocal lines undoubled as possible. The constant string or wind doubling weighs down the soloists; in the present version they can sing freely.³⁸

Confutatis: The main reading in the winds at mm. 6–7 and 16–17 has been freely adapted from Süssmayr's version; however, the alternative versions (especially the one without the cross-relation in m. 6) have much to recommend them.

Lacrimosa: Süssmayr's basic shape has been retained.³⁹ The harmonic contradictions and questionable voice leadings (choral bass, mm. 9–14; soprano, mm. 13–14) have been removed. The ritornello (mm. 19–21) poses an interesting problem. In Süssmayr's version this orchestral passage has a double function: 1) confirmation of the arrival in the relative major, F; 2) a transition back to the primary key, D minor. This double function seems very questionable for such a short passage (three measures!); in Mozart's music it is rather the role of a soloist (or, in the present case, the chorus) to lead the movement onward after the tonal confirmation of the orchestra. Moreover, the progression in m. 21 of Süssmayr's version is precisely that of the main theme, resulting in a triple statement of this idea. The one-measure shortening in the new completion avoids this redundancy. The inclusion of the Amen fugue requires an arrival on a half-cadence instead of Süssmayr's perfect cadence. In the process of restructuring the movement Süssmayr's metrically inexact quotation of the INTROITUS theme (mm. 26–27 of his version) has been transformed into an exact citation (mm. 24–25) with an answer on the dominant (tenor, mm. 25–26).⁴⁰

Amen: When one considers the two fugues drafted by Mozart (Kyrie, Quam olim Abrahae), one realizes that they are written in two different styles: a) a rigorous fugue in a Handelian mold; b) a looser choral texture dependent upon the supporting motive in orchestral bass and violin, and with unambiguous traits of the rococo (mm. 67–71). Because Mozart's sketch for the Amen fugue prescribes an intricate, “difficult” counterpoint (note the voice crossings), a voice leading with considerable friction between the voices was intentionally chosen. This solution, with its prominent dissonances, seemed structurally and dramatically justified for the torment and anguish of the Last Judgment (the SEQUENCE). It is easy to show that a contrapuntal musical language of this type is to be encountered in late Mozart: cf. inter alia the String Quartet in F major, K. 590, fourth movement, mm. 86–96 and 257–267; the String Quintet in D major, K. 593, second movement, mm. 53–56; and the F-minor Fantasia for mechanical organ K. 608.

For reasons that have already been given, the fugue has intentionally been kept free of modulations.

Domine Jesu: A transparent instrumentation has been attempted. Note, in particular, the treatment of the strings in mm. 32–40. In the Quam olim Abrahae fugue, the violin motive has been carried rigorously through the entire fugue, in contrast to Beyer. This is not merely a question of taste: the text is an entreaty to God to hold His word. A certain consistency seemed for that reason imperative. However, the strings have been limited to a two-part texture (Violin I/II – Viola and Basso) from m. 47 until the dominant pedal (m. 61). The colla parte treatment of the winds was by no means obligatory, but was carried out on the basis of the C-minor mass, with the necessary alterations in the first basset horn (because of range limitations) and in the trombones (partial simplification of the rhythm).

Hostias: Concerning the dynamics and the possible colla parte participation of the trombones see above. The somewhat conspicuous first violin part in mm. 37–38 was chosen to establish a connection with the figure at the end (mm. 53–54).

³⁸ Eybler's and Süssmayr's decision to double the vocal lines by the strings starting in m. 14 contradicts the quarter notes notated by Mozart on the downbeat in both violin parts.

³⁹ Contemporary settings show that this movement was kept short.

⁴⁰ This motivic relationship has been pointed out by Christoph Wolff: op. cit., pp. 113–114.

Sanctus/Hosanna: The retention of the key of D major – attacked by Maunder⁴¹ – requires an explanation. It has been objected that this radiant key is foreign to the spirit of a mass for the dead.⁴² Mozart's masses in the minor mode (K. 139/114a, K. 427/417a) contain major-key settings of the Sanctus. There are also practical grounds: the necessity to avoid a change in the trumpets and timpani, which would be without precedent in Mozart's sacred music. That Mozart may have made the choice of D major is suggested by the beginning of the Benedictus, with its built-in tonal transition.⁴³ This choice of key has consequences for the basset horns, however. Süssmayr's decision to write for basset horns in F in the key of A contradicts Mozart's unequivocal practice in treating instruments of the clarinet family. Mozart wrote for clarinets in C, B \flat , B \natural ⁴⁴ and A, and basset horns in G and F. In no case did he ever write for clarinet or basset horn with more than a single sharp in the key signature. For a Sanctus movement in D major, then, there would be only two possibilities: basset horns in G, in G major; or clarinets in A, in F major. As attractive as it would seem to retain basset horns as the uppermost wind instruments, it would be irrelevant for today's practice: basset horns in G are no longer to be found. This accounts for the decision to use clarinets in A. The objection raised by players that it is against 18th century practice to demand a change of instrument from movement to movement (and that, in any case, the second instrument will be cold and therefore produce intonation problems) is for Mozart absolutely untrue: he demands just that in specifying a change from oboe to flute in numerous instrumental works⁴⁵ and from one clarinet to another.⁴⁶

The obbligato violin part was inspired by the Sanctus of the C-minor mass. In spite of the well-known anecdote concerning Mozart's imitation with his mouth of a drum roll on his deathbed,⁴⁷ Süssmayr's peculiar timpani part was not preserved. Mm. 1–5 of his choral version have been retained; the conspicuous cross-relation in the bass (m. 6) and the curious tonal discrepancies of mm. 6–10 have been eliminated through reworking. Now the chorus follows a consistent path to the tonic in Mozartean fashion. The newly composed Hosanna fugue displays the proportions of a Mozartean church fugue (modeled after the C-minor mass). It was attempted to keep the movement to a modest length, in order to limit the proportion of newly composed music. The final chord appears with root and fifth and without third, as found in movements drafted by Mozart (e. g., Kyrie fugue, Dies irae). However, an alternative with the third is included, reflecting Mozart's practice in the C-minor mass.

Benedictus: The vocal quartet in mm. 3–18 has been retained as the heart of the reworked movement. The ritornello consists, now as in Süssmayr's version, of the transitional phrase at the beginning, but the errors in his voice leading have been dispensed with through reworking. A Salzburgian string texture of two violins and bass (viola doubling bass) has been chosen for the most part, in order to accompany the vocal soloists more transparently. Before important cadences a cappella treatment has been used, as was done at the end of the Rex tremendae. The all too vague relationship between Süssmayr's middle and final ritornellos with the "et lux perpetua" passage from the INTROITUS⁴⁸ encouraged the author to replace this indirect reference with a direct quotation.⁴⁹ Through a four-bar phrase with a perfect cadence, instead of Süssmayr's half-cadence, Süssmayr's choral transition (mm. 22–27 of his version) can be moved a half-measure forward, thereby allowing the new version to reach the recapitulation with an orchestral transition of only a half-measure (instead of Süssmayr's entire measure). The recapitulation itself has been slightly revised, so that the modulation to E-flat major takes a measure longer, corresponding to the exposition, and so that the melodic shape of the soprano in the following section is freer. A new transition, derived from the INTROITUS (mm. 50–54) and the Kyrie in D minor, K. 341 (mm. 54–56),⁵⁰ leads to a shortened reprise of the Hosanna fugue in the original key of D major (not in B-flat major, as in Süssmayr's version: cf. p. VII) The decision to shorten the reprise of the fugue had three reasons:

- 1) it seemed harmonically important to aim for a half-cadence in D minor (in order to recall the central key of the work rather than going straight from B-flat major to D major). Because the Hosanna fugue begins on the tonic, a complete reiteration of the fugue would not be possible with this strategy;
- 2) the Hosanna fugue of the C-minor mass also returns after the Benedictus in shortened form;
- 3) through this procedure the amount of new music once again could be held within boundaries.

⁴¹ Op. cit., pp. 40–41.

⁴² This view was propounded in 1839 by Anton Herzog. His report is reproduced in its entirety in Mozart: Die Dokumente seines Lebens. Addenda und Corrigenda, zusammengestellt von Joseph Heinz Eibl. Kassel etc. 1978; the passage criticizing the Sanctus appears on p. 104. Unfortunately the English translation (Otto Erich Deutsch, Mozart: A Documentary Biography, translated by Eric Blom, Peter Branscombe and Jeremy Noble, Stanford 1965) abridges the document and omits the passage in question, which reads: "But I am convinced that Mozart would not have written the Sanctus in D major and in this style; because although the text is the same as in a high mass, the circumstances in a Requiem are completely different; a mourning service is being held, the church is draped in black, and the priests appear in raiments of mourning. Blaring music is inappropriate to such a setting. One can call out 'Holy, holy' without having to use drum rolls." (Translation of the author.)

⁴³ Cf. p. XIX.

⁴⁴ Cf. Idomeneo, No. 15, chorus "Placido è il mar"; No. 19, aria, "Zeffiretti, lusinghieri"; Così fan tutte, No. 25, aria, "Per pietà, ben mio" – all in E major. The NMA edition of Idomeneo transposes the B clarinet parts for A clarinets.

⁴⁵ Cf. n. 28.

⁴⁶ E. g., in Così fan tutte, Act II, No. 23 (instruments in C) No. 24 (in B-flat), No. 25 (in B), following the NMA. (I am grateful to Daniel N. Leeson for this information.) The pauses provided by intervening recitatives are relatively short.

⁴⁷ Cf. the letter of 7 April 1825 from Sophie Haibel, Mozart's sister-in-law, in: The Letters of Mozart & His Family. Chronologically arranged, Translated and Edited with an Introduction, Notes and Indices by Emily Anderson. London 1938, Vol. III, p. 1450.

⁴⁸ Cf. mm. 15ff., 43ff. of that movement with Süssmayr's Benedictus, mm. 18ff. and 50ff.

⁴⁹ The fact that the middle ritornello begins on the third beat and the last one on the first beat was cited by Maunder (op. cit., p. 57) as an argument against its authenticity; but cf. Domine Jesu, mm. 32–40, where the identical phenomenon occurs.

⁵⁰ Cf. mm. 79–82. This work has recently been redated to 1787–1791. The progression is better known through its appearance in the overture to Don Giovanni (mm. 7–11). The overture shares the key of D minor – whose demonic overtones in Mozart are universally acknowledged – and a thematic connection with death.

AGNUS DEI: The structure of the AGNUS DEI has been retained, but the infelicities of Süssmayr's version have been averted in the second and third sections. The connection between the two constituent ideas (Agnus Dei – donaeis Requiem) was accomplished differently, and the first note of m. 11 in the bass was changed from Süssmayr's A to f, in order to keep the motive (cf. soprano) organic. The course of the third section is derived from passages in the Recordare and the Hostias.⁵¹ Süssmayr's diminished seventh chord in m. 45 – which produces voice leading problems for him and an unconvincing connection to the G-flat major triad that follows – has been replaced by a simple deceptive cadence on G-flat.⁵² The final measures have been expanded to provide a complete four-part choral imitation, Süssmayr's crescendo has been deleted, and the penultimate measure proposes an alternative reading for Süssmayr's 7-4-2 structure on the third beat.

Lux aeterna – Cum sanctis tuis: In contrast with all prior editions, this final section of the Requiem, the COMMUNION, has been incorporated into a single unit with the AGNUS DEI, with continuous numbering of the measures. The Lux aeterna was compared with the Mozart's autograph of the INTROITUS; in mm. 78–79 the alternative readings for trumpets and timpani reappear. The revised text setting of the Cum sanctis tuis fugue (cf. p. XXIV) produces small rhythmic alterations in chorus and orchestra. The entire musical text was otherwise compared with that of the Kyrie fugue.

The Edition

The present completion incorporates a new critical edition of the Requiem. All dynamics, articulation, figuration and other markings from Mozart's autograph and Süssmayr's completion have been shown with Roman type and normal-sized dots and accent strokes. Additions of the author are given in italics, smaller type, in square brackets (for figuration), and slurs are dotted. In voices or movements forming part of the completion all dynamics are in italics and the otherwise observed optical distinction of editorial additions is not carried out.

Many colleagues have provided essential contributions, help and advice in the preparation of this completion. Without Helmuth Rilling's stimulation and confidence I never would have dared to undertake this daunting project. I owe him deepest thanks for his unconditional support, his willingness to incorporate new corrections an hour before the world premiere, and his complete commitment to performance and recording. Prof. Dr. Christoph Wolff (Belmont, USA) permitted me access to his ongoing research concerning the Requiem and, in particular, to the manuscript of his Requiem monograph before its publication. Prof. Dr. Marius Flothuis (Amsterdam) provided me generous and indispensable advice concerning many stylistic questions. Prof. Dr. Wolfgang Plath (†) helped with the question of handwriting in the numbering of pages of the original manuscripts. At a time when performances on historical instruments are an ever more important part of our musical life it was indispensable to check the playability of the wind parts on instruments of Mozart's time; in this matter I am most grateful to Lesley Schatzberger (York) and Alastair Mitchell (Lewes/East Sussex). Helpful suggestions were given by John Harbison (Cambridge, USA), Daniel N. Lee-son (Los Altos, USA) and Stanley Sadie (London). Above all I wish to thank Prof. Dr. Ulrich Prinz of the International Bach Academy in Stuttgart for his tireless and irreplaceable collaboration in the preparation of the score and parts for the premiere, recording and publication, as well as the editing of the German version of the foreword. Without his participation and suggestions the project would never have been realized.

It is hoped that the new version honors Mozart's spirit while allowing the listener to experience Mozart's magnificent Requiem torso within the sonic framework of its historical tradition.

Freiburg im Breisgau, spring 1993

⁵¹ Cf. p. XVIII.

⁵² Maunder's augmented sixth chord on G-flat, followed by a G-flat major triad, is also an un-Mozartean progression.

First system of the musical score. It features a vocal line in the upper staff and a piano accompaniment in the lower staff. The piano part begins with a dynamic marking of p (piano). The vocal line has a bd (basso continuo) marking above it. The piano accompaniment consists of a flowing sixteenth-note pattern in the right hand and a more rhythmic bass line in the left hand.

ossia: senza Tromboni.....

Second system of the musical score, showing the piano accompaniment. It includes three staves: two for the right hand and one for the left hand. The dynamic marking p is present at the beginning of each staff. The right hand continues with the sixteenth-note pattern, while the left hand provides harmonic support.

Third system of the musical score, continuing the piano accompaniment. The right hand's sixteenth-note pattern becomes more complex, incorporating some triplets. The left hand maintains its rhythmic accompaniment.

Fourth system of the musical score, featuring four vocal staves with lyrics. The lyrics are: "lu - ce - at e - - - is.", "lu - ce - at e - - - is.", "lu - ce - at e - - - is.", and "lu - ce - at e - - - is." Each staff begins with a dynamic marking of p. The vocal lines are arranged in a four-part setting.

Fifth system of the musical score. It includes a bass line and an organ part. The bass line is marked Tutti Bassi and p. The organ part is marked Solo and Organo: tasto solo. Below the organ part, there are figured bass notations: $\frac{6}{5}$, $\frac{b7}{-}$, $\frac{5}{4}$, $\frac{-}{8}$, and $\frac{4}{-}$.

The musical score is arranged in a system with multiple staves. At the top, there are two staves for a vocal part, with a treble clef and a key signature of one flat. Below these are two more staves, also with a treble clef and one flat. The next section consists of three staves for a piano accompaniment, with a grand staff (treble and bass clefs) and a key signature of one flat. The vocal line begins with the lyrics "Te a - - gnus De - us in Si - on," and is marked "Solo". The piano accompaniment features intricate rhythmic patterns, including sixteenth and thirty-second notes. At the bottom of the page, there is a single staff for "Violoncelli" (cellos), marked "senza Organo". The key signature for the cello part is one flat. A large, stylized watermark "CARUS" is overlaid diagonally across the middle of the page.
