

Come, Holy Ghost

Thomas Attwood (1765–1838) 1835

Text: John Cosin (1594–1672) nach

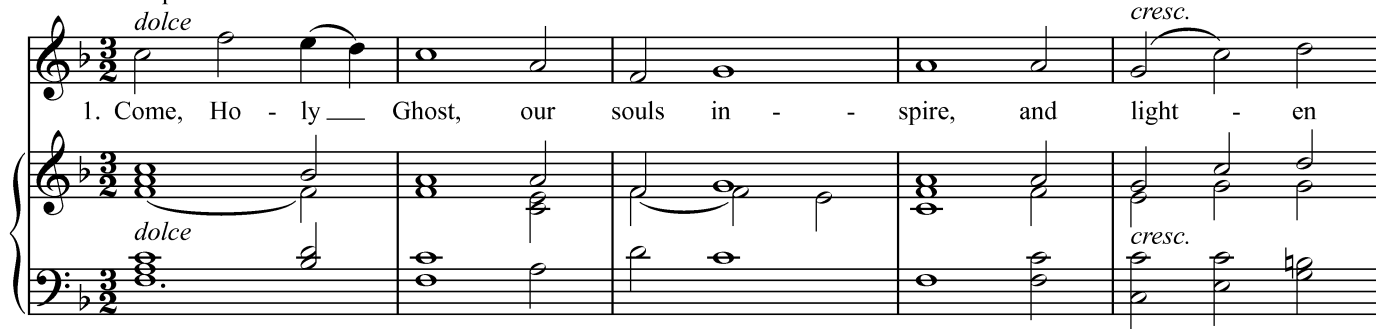

„Veni Creator Spiritus“ von Hrabanus Maurus (c. 776–856)

Larghetto

Soprano solo o tutti

dolce cresc.

1. Come, Ho - ly Ghost, our souls in - - spire, and light - en

6 dolce

with ce - les - - tial fire. Thou the a - noint -

11 cresc.

Spir - it art, who dost thy sev - er - a - part.

17 p

Thy bless - ed unc - - bove, is com - fort, life, and

23

is com - fort, life, and 29

Organo

Coro senza Organo

dolce

Prinzipale Sw

2. En - a - ble_ with per -

dolce

35

cresc.

pe - tual light, the dull - ness of our blind - ed_ sight. A - cresc.

p

41

cresc.

noint_ and cheer_ our soil - ed face, u. - dance

cresc.

47

p

cresc.

of thy_ grace. Keep far ou_ at home,_ where thou_ art

p

cresc.

54

guide,_ where thou_ art guide,_ no ill can come.

Coro col

3. T

dolce

67

cresc.

Fa - ther, Son, and thee — of both to be — but —

cresc.

72

p

one, that through the a - ges all — a - long this — may be — our

p

cresc.

79

f

end - less song: Praise to thy — e - ter - nal

f

86

f

Son, — and Ho - ly Spir - it, — and Ho - ly Spir - it.

93 Organo

Sw. mf

Ped.

98

pp

1. heiligste Geist, entzünde unsere Herzen und erhell sie mit himmlischem Feuer. D
 sie. Er verleiht. Deine Salbung, vom Himmel gesegnet, gibt uns Trost, Leben un
 2. Erleuchte uns mit dem ewigen Licht die Dunkelheit vor unseren blinden Augen. Salbe und erhel Fülle de. Gnade. Halte unsere Feinde fern von uns, gib Frieden daheim; wo du uns leites
 3. Lehre uns kennen den Vater, Sohn und dich, der du bist beider Geist und doch einer, dass a unser ewig erklingendes Lied sei: Lob sei deinem immerwährenden Verdienst, Vater, Sohn und Heiliger Geist.

